GOP Chieftains Are Reelected

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — The Democrats today won narrow control of the new 82nd Congress, but the Republicans in a smashing display of off-year resurgence elected the GOP's outstanding leaders across the nation.

Figures tell the story of greatly lessened administration control over the new Congress.

The Senate will line up this way: Democrats, 49; Republicans, 47.

In the 81st Congress, which goes out of existence Dec. 31, the lineup is: Democrats, 54, Republicans, 42.

The House setup in the 81st Congress is: Democrats, 259; Republicans, 169; American Labor Party (Rep. Marcantonio, N. Y.) 1; vacancies, 6.

Latest returns show 233 Democrats, 194 Republicans with seats won in the 82nd Congress.

The administration's Senate leadership was swept out of office and such top Republicans as Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Colorado were re-elected.

SENATE MAJORITY Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois was beaten by Former Rep. Everett Dirksen, Pennsylvania's Republican Governor James Duff defeated Senate Majority Whip Francis W. Myers.

Even more surprising was the victory of a comparative unknown, John Marshall Butler, over the veteran Sen. Millard Tydings, (D) Md., chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee.

Political observers agreed that Tydings was beaten on the Communist infiltration issue. He was accused by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., of "white-washing" McCarthy's charges that Red sympathizers had infiltrated the State Department.

Sen. Elbert Thomas, another administration stalwart, went down to defeat in Utah. In gubernatorial races, latest returns indicated that the Republicans probably will pick up seven governorships — five are certain. Should Republicans be elected in Michigan and Arizona, (Continued on Page Two)

'Jumpin' Joe' Still Has A Job

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Despite political defeat, Joseph T. Ferguson, Democrat opponent for GOP Sen. Robert A. Taft, still holds a political office today.

Ferguson has two more years to go as state auditor. His office was the only state job not up for "bid" in yesterday's elections.

In his fourth term as auditor, "Jumpin' Joe" was first elected in 1932 and held office through two changes of political administrations.

BIG CITY MEASURE OK'D

Only One School Issue Fails To Get Approval

Tuesday's election apparently has paved the way to better conditions in Pickaway County schools in the near future.

According to early, unofficial reports of the election, only one bond issue in the county school system failed while all of the current operating expense levies were believed to have passed.

Largest issue in the county—the $475,000 Circleville physical education building program—was believed to have received just a hair more than the required 55 percent.

Unofficial total for the issue was 1,953. There were 1,472 against. Only one of the 14 precincts voting on the issue polled more "no" than "yes" votes. That precinct was 1E.

Lone issue failing to receive the necessary backing as indicated by early reports was the proposed $20,000 Walnut Township school building bond.

ACCORDING TO the returns, Walnut East and West polled only 174 votes in favor of the issue while casting a total of 230 unfavorable tickets.

Bonds which were believed to have passed in the balloting were a $25,000 issue in Williamsport; a $10,000 issue in Wayne Township; and a $16,000 proposal for Darby Township.

Additional counting probably will be conducted to determine whether the Darby Township bond issue actually passed.

However, according to the unofficial tabulation the issue carried when a 56 percent margin was established. A 55 percent margin is required.

Deercreek appeared to be swamped with favorable opinion of its bond in the early count as the voters of the district voted 528 "for" tickets as opposed by only 156 "against" votes.

Five county school tax levies also were believed to have been given approval.

They are a six-mill renewal for Scioto Township, believed to have passed by a 403-145 margin; a three-mill renewal and an increase of two mills for Darby Township school which was believed passed by a margin of 330 to 92; a three-mill renewal for Muhlenberg Township school, which unofficially received 164 favorable votes as compared to only 43 "against" tickets; a six-mill renewal for Deercreek Township, believed to have passed by an overwhelming majority of 408 to 147; and a three-mill renewal for Salt Creek Township school.

THE SALT CREEK renewal was decidedly not definite as of Wednesday, however, as election officials puzzled over circumstances surrounding the proposition.

At the eastern end of the Chongchon arc, South Korean Seventh Division troops pushed north Wednesday to within a mile and a half of the key town of Wonn from which they had been ejected last week by Chinese and Korean Reds.

Taftman Due For Payoff

Because Sen. Robert A. Taft was reelected, Democrat Karl Herrmann will man a wheelbarrow giving an election bet payoff ride to Taftman G. D. Phillips about 11:30 a. m. Thursday.

The trip will be from Phillips' office to Elks lodge in time for luncheon meeting of Rotary Club. Jubilant Rotarians will form an escort for the entourage down Court street.

Congressman Brehm Is Given 4,712 Margin

Pickaway County's hottest contest during Tuesday's election centered around the representative to Congress race.

After the smoke had cleared away from the final tabulations, Republican Congressman Walter E. Brehm had carried the county by exactly a dozen votes.

Final results of the contest showed that incumbent Brehm scored a 4,712 count while Democratic Candidate Mell Underwood Jr. had received 4,700 votes.

Meanwhile, heavy balloting in favor of Brehm in the other four counties represented in the 11th district accounted for Brehm's reelection as congressman by a 4,069-vote majority.

Heaviest support for the congressman was received in Perry County, where he was given a 1,826-vote margin.

Complete results of the balloting in the five 11th district counties follow:

County	Brehm	Underwood
Ross	9,594	8,677
Fairfield	9,676	8,133
Pickaway	4,712	4,700
Hocking	3,409	3,629
Perry	6,141	4,315
Total	33,523	29,454

Massachusetts Keeps Dever

BOSTON, Nov. 7 — Governor Paul A. Dever tonight became the first Democratic chief executive in 16 years to win an off-year election in Massachusetts and the first of his party to win reelection in 18 years.

In Democratic Boston alone 220 of 362 precincts gave the governor 138,740 to 43,692 for his Republican rival, Ex-Lieutenant Governor Arthur W. Coolidge, a veteran campaigner.

The chief executive said: "I will win the election by 250,000, and it might go to 300,000."

WALLACE, MACE WINNERS

10,529 Countians Ballot; Two Incumbents Defeated

Pickaway Countians, 10,529 strong, trooped to the polls Tuesday to place two Democrats and one Republican in local public offices.

In the process they knocked two Republican incumbents out of office.

The Pickaway County vote largest since the 1940 presidential election, when 12,850 appeared at the polls. It was the largest off-year vote ever recorded here.

Winning the race for representative to the state general assembly was Ed Wallace, Democrat, with an unofficial total of 5,231 votes over 4,467 for his opponent, incumbent H. E. Louis, Republican. Wallace carried 23 of the 42 precincts.

Governor Frank J. Lausche, Democrat, forged ahead of Don H. Ebright, Republican contender for the top state job, 5,767 to 4,391 in the county.

In the contest for representative to Congress from the 11th district, Walter E. Brehm, Republican, garnered 12 more Pickaway votes than his Democratic challenger, Mell G. Underwood. Vote was 4,712 for Brehm to 4,700 for Underwood, who has conceded defeat.

Both state senatorial posts were carried here by Republicans, George B. Marshall, 4,531, and incumbent Rosecoe R. Walcutt, 4,392, over Democrats Grace R. Clifton, 4,076, and incumbent Evan P. Ford, 3,627.

In the race for representative to the state general assembly, Wallace proved strongest in Circleville as he carried all of the 13 precincts.

The contest between Mace and Penn for county commissioner, on the other hand, was close in the city, with Penn carrying two more precincts than Mace. His defeat was meted out in rural precincts.

County voters pointed the finger of approval at George D. Nye, Democrat, for lieutenant governor, returning 4,776 votes to Republican J. Eugene Roberts' 4,551.

THEY PREFERRED Ted W. Brown, Republican, to Charles F. Sweeney, Democrat, for secretary of state, 4,647 to 4,622. For treasurer of state Roger W. Tracy, Republican, was preferred to Democrat Frank M. Quinn, 4,877 to 4,273.

For attorney general Pickaway Countians indicated a preference for Republican C. William O'Neil over Democrat Herbert S. Duffy, 4,581 to 4,511.

For representative-at-large to Congress county voters gave the nod to Republican George H. Bender

Ohio Republican Congress Force Hiked By Four

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Republicans gained four Ohio congressional seats in Tuesday's election and missed by only a few hundred votes of making it six.

Before yesterday's election, the Ohio delegation was split 12 to 11 in favor of the Democrats. If the unofficial counts stand up in the final official reports, Republicans will be in control of the Buckeye delegation in Washington next January by a 15 to 8 margin.

The GOP victories over Democratic incumbents yesterday were by William E. Hess in the second (Cincinnati) district; by Frank T. Bow in the 16th (Canton) district; by William H. Ayres in the 14th (Akron) district; and by George H. Bender in the at-large race.

In addition the Republican candidates came close to upsetting the Democratic incumbents in the 6th and 18th districts, won respectively by James G. Polk and Wayne L. Hays.

The ninth (Toledo) district also will be represented by a new congressman, but he still is a Democrat. Former State Welfare Director Frazier Reams filed there as an independent after the primary and won a surprising victory over the Democratic incumbent and the Republican nominee.

The Republicans won easily with former state legislator Jackson Betts of Findlay, the eighth district seat for which Congressman Frederick Smith did not seek reelection.

Elsewhere, incumbents won with comfortable margins.

Ferguson Says He Is 'Surprised'

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Virtually complete returns from Ohio's record-breaking election show that it's still Republican Senator Taft and Democrat Governor Lausche in bipartisan Ohio.

A tabulation of all but 369 of the state's 10,386 polling places gave "Mr. Republican" an almost-unbelievable margin of 413,783 votes over his labor-backed Democrat opponent, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

But the independent-minded and personally-popular Lausche, while carrying only 21 of the 88 counties, made them the big ones to lead GOP Six-Term State Treasurer Don H. Ebright by 136,767 ballots.

The tallies from 10,017 voting places:

For U. S. senator—Taft 1,581,122; Ferguson 1,167,339.

For governor—Lausche 1,458,572; Ebright 1,322,117.

Taft's smashing majority carried him to victory in 83 of the 88 counties, losing only Jefferson, Lawrence, Pike, Summit and Belmont Counties in the nation's most important off-year election.

IT WAS A STINGING and bitter defeat for the nation's labor bosses who had marked Taft as their number one target and who had done everything they could, only to wind up with a measly five counties.

In winning a third Senate term, Taft's strength was so great that he pulled enough Republicans along with him to regain control of both the Ohio congressional delegation and the Ohio legislature—prizes wrested from the GOP in the 1948 Truman landslide.

The current Ohio congressional delegation is split 12 to 11 in favor of the Democrats. Under Taft's leadership, the Republicans apparently picked up four seats. This would (Continued on Page Two)

Chester Bowles Is Defeated

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 8—Republican Congressman John Davis Lodge was elected governor of Connecticut today.

Lodge will take office for the first four-year term in the state's history. Previous governors have served two years.

Democrat Governor Chester Bowles conceded the election last night when returns from 139 of the state's 169 towns showed a 10,363 plurality for Lodge. In 1948 Bowles squeezed into office by about 2,200 votes.

ROBERT TAFT won his bid for reelection to the U. S. Senate Tuesday, slapping Democrat Joe Ferguson and his labor-backers soundly.

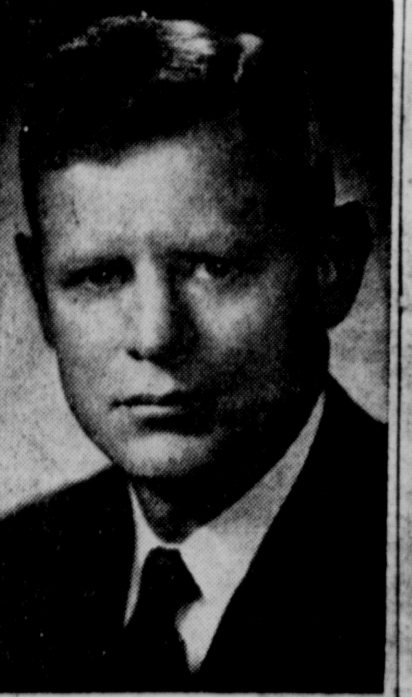

GENIAL Gov. Frank J. Lausche failed to fall into the Ohio Republican trap Tuesday, won handsily over GOPster Don Ebright.

WALTER BREHM, congressman from this district, has been returned to office. His opponent, Democrat Mell Underwood Jr., has conceded defeat.

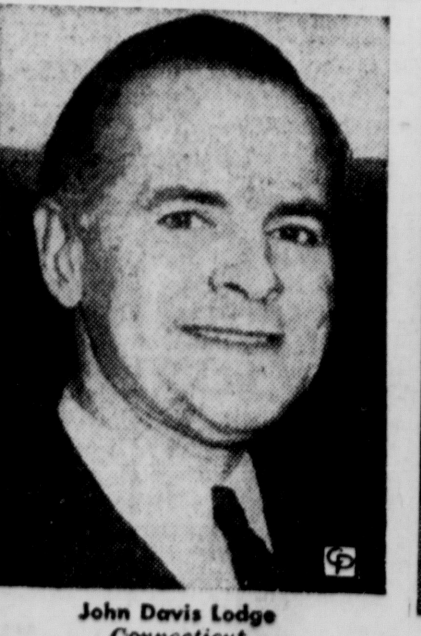

ONLY GOP candidate to retain his post in Pickaway County Tuesday was Auditor Fred Tipton who defeated his opponent, Independent - Democrat Allen Eagleson by a near - record margin.

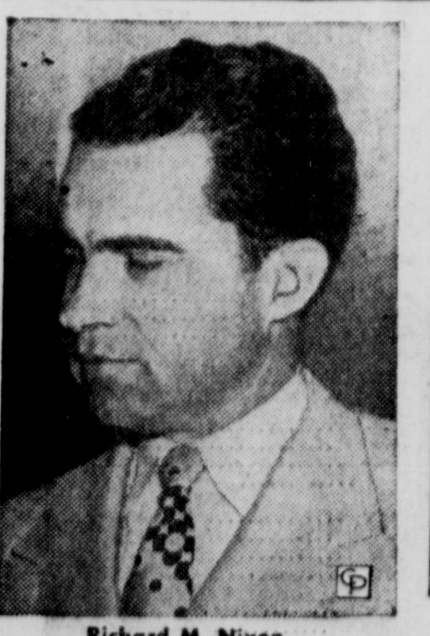

GEORGE MARSHALL is the new state senator from this district.

ROSCOE WALCUTT Tuesday was reelected state senator from this district.

John Davis Lodge, Connecticut Democrat Gov. Chester Bowles, one-time federal OPA administrator.

Richard M. Nixon, California ... outstanding representative, he was moved up into the Senate.

Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., Missouri ... a Democrat, he ousted the incumbent Republican senator in President Truman's state.

James H. Duff, Pennsylvania ... he whipped the whip of the Democrats in the U. S. Senate, making one more Republican in the upper chamber.

Thomas E. Dewey, New York ... infamous "Hanley Letter" failed to prevent his election for a third term.

Everett M. Dirksen, Illinois ... He upset Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas, giving GOP new seat in upper house.

Trumanite Leaders Whipped

where races are tight, the GOP will have 25 governors.

Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson asserted that the voters made it plain that "they are opposed to Socialism in free America."

The Republicans elected six new senators for a net gain of five seats. Sen. Donnell, (R) Mo., was defeated in President Truman's home state.

A terrific volume of voters participated in the elections. Estimates ranged from 40 to 42 million, a record-shattering performance in an off-year.

The voters evidenced grave concern over the future. In effect, they rebuked the Truman administration by slashing its majorities in both House and Senate.

The new Congress must legislate to rearm the nation to meet the world crisis of Communist aggression. In its hands will go such problems as higher tax, rent, price and wage controls, anti-inflation measures and the rearming of Europe and friendly Asia.

THE AMERICAN people actually placed control of the new Congress in the hands of a coalition of Southern anti-administration Democrats and Republicans.

The American people evidenced some dissatisfaction with present Democrat leadership by electing all outstanding Republican critics and actually sweeping the Senate clean of its present Democrat leadership.

The Republican Party's greatest leaders were reelected to high office, even if the Democrats control the House and Senate by narrow margins.

Notable GOP victors were Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, "Mr. Republican" himself, and his right hand lieutenant, Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado.

Others were the GOP presidential ticket of 1948—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

The GOP also defeated three outstanding Democratic senators—the Senate majority leader, Scott Lucas in Illinois; the Democrat whip, Sen. Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; and the Democrat leader of the inquiry into Communist influence in government, Sen. Millard Tydings in Maryland.

On the surface this would indicate a terrific "turn to the right." But the voters were balancing for personal preferences, choosing individuals rather than issues.

The returns thrust three Republicans into the 1952 presidential limelight. Taft almost becomes a favorite although he curbed all such talk during his campaign.

A NEWCOMER, who may have a hat in the GOP ring, is Governor Duff of Pennsylvania who defeated Myers. He was a reluctant last minute supporter of Taft in 1948. Another potentiality is Governor Warren of California.

Dewey renounced all presidential ambitions in the midst of his campaign and declared he favored Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the nomination.

The rank and file of Democrats did very well at the polls. Early today, the Democrats appeared certain of at least 49 seats in the Senate while the Republicans seemed to have won 45 seats.

Two seats, one in Utah and one in Idaho, were still undecided.

The Democrats won control of the House of Representatives when final returns showed 224 Democrats had been elected in Tuesday's balloting.

The Democrats need but 218 votes to organize the next House which convenes Jan. 3.

The Republicans had elected 179 members by 4:45 a. m. with many other districts leaning toward them. At that hour, the Republicans had a net gain of only 19 seats when they needed a net gain of 46 seats to win control of the House.

It appeared the Democratic majority in the next House would be between 30 and 40 seats.

In the present House, the Democrats have an 89-vote majority.

Any combination of Republicans with Southern Democrats will be costly to the administration.

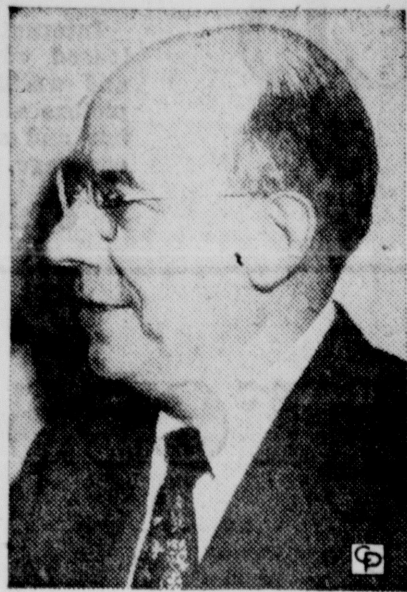

It seems a paradox that the American voter would elect three outstanding critics of the Truman administration, defeat three of his most powerful Senate leaders and then give the Democrats control of the next Congress.

DEMOCRATS retained seats in Connecticut (2), New York, Rhode Island, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Washington, in addition to eight in the Solid South and Arizona and Nevada in the Far Southwest. They also elected Rep. Thomas C. Hennings in Missouri over Republican Sen. Forrest Donnell for their only gain.

The Republicans meanwhile reelected senators in New Hampshire, Vermont, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Oregon in addition to Taft and Milliken.

They gained five seats by electing Gov. James H. Duff over Sen. Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; John Marshall Butler over Sen. Millard Tydings in Maryland; Former Rep. Everett Dirksen over Sen. Scott Lucas in Illinois; Herman Welker over ex-Sen. D. Clark for the Taylor seat in Idaho and Rep. Richard Nixon over Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas for the Downey seat in California.

This gave the Republicans a total of 16 seats to join their 29 holdover senators for a total of 45.

Stassen Says He Assumes Acheson To Quit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Harold E. Stassen said today that he assumes Secretary of State Acheson will resign in face of the "repudiation of the administration's foreign policy, particularly in the Far East."

The former Minnesota governor interpreted Tuesday's elections as an indication the people want Gen. Douglas MacArthur to have a larger say in Far Eastern policy.

Stassen said, however, he was not suggesting that Acheson be replaced by MacArthur.

He explained that "it is not incumbent on us to suggest names for the President's cabinet."

But Stassen emphasized that it is "incumbent on the President to consult Republican Senate leaders on policy in this crisis in the Far East."

Stassen declared that this was the first non-presidential election in which both the Senate majority leader (Scott Lucas, Ill.) and Senate majority whip (Francis Myers, Pa.) were defeated at the same time.

Stassen, a 1948 GOP presidential aspirant, said the elections have left the Republicans in a "healthy situation" in respect to the 1952 White House race. He declined to say whether the results will affect his own political future.

Robert Colburn Is 'Missing' On Draft Records

Another possible delinquent has been reported by Pickaway County draft board.

He is Robert Junior Colburn whose last known address was Mt. Sterling Route 1. Officials said a notice ordering him to report for physical examination Nov. 13 has been returned to the draft office by the postoffice department.

Persons registered under the Selective Service Law are required to keep their draft board informed of any changes in status, such as marriage or change of address.

Write-In Results Still Uncertain

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—The winner of the write-in campaign for the supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Judge Edward C. Turner will not be known until Friday and possibly not until next week.

Secretary of State Charles T. Sweeney instructed county election boards not to report the results by telephone. Instead, the boards were asked to send the write-in counts by mail so as not to retard transmission of other election returns.

The Democrats need but 218 votes to organize the next House which convenes Jan. 3.

The Republicans had elected 179 members by 4:45 a. m. with many other districts leaning toward them. At that hour, the Republicans had a net gain of only 19 seats when they needed a net gain of 46 seats to win control of the House.

give the Republicans a 15-to-8 margin.

Lausche, however, withstood the Taft tornado by piling up a two-to-one margin in his own home city of Cleveland. His margin in Cuyahoga County soared past the 150,000 mark—a tribute that enabled him to withstand Ebright's downstate strength.

The amazed and disappointed Ferguson conceded defeat at 2 a. m.

At that time he wired Taft that the senator had handed him "the greatest surprise of my entire life."

Taft's margin, great as it was, was not sufficient to capture the governorship for his running mate, six-term state treasurer Don H. Ebright, who conceded Lausche's reelection at 4 a. m. It was the first defeat in Ebright's public career.

Taft's reelection was so evident that he issued a victory statement even before Election Day itself slipped into history. In his Cincinnati home, the senator declared that "my victory signifies that organized labor cannot carry an election on the basis they don't agree with a candidate."

Taft also declared that Ohio's vote was "a declaration of disapproval of President Truman's Socialist program, and the results are favorable for a GOP presidential candidate in 1952."

The senator refused to say, however, if he would seek to be that candidate. He said only that it was "too early to speculate" on the next presidential campaign.

Cleveland, as expected, held the answers to both the senatorial and gubernatorial races. Lausche's two-to-one margin in his home community was more than enough to overcome the downstate lead Taft's magic gave to Ebright. Taft, for his part, lagged only slightly behind Ferguson in what nominally is a Democrat stronghold.

CINCINNATI, the state's second largest community and Taft's home town, gave the senator an eight-to-five margin, although Lausche demonstrated his personal popularity by edging Ebright in that supposed citadel of Republicanism.

Montgomery (Dayton) County, another cemetery of Ferguson hopes, gave the auditor only a few more votes than it did Taft. Even Lausche carried it by less than 4,500 votes, considerably less than his margin there of two years ago.

Industrialized Toledo, Canton and Columbus also gave sizeable margins to Taft despite Ferguson's Labor endorsements, while the senator held his own in Youngstown and Akron.

The rural areas, as expected, gave Taft tremendous majorities, and only Lausche's big-city margins saved him from becoming a Taft victim.

The bipartisan Taft-Lausche victory left the remainder of the state offices hanging in the balance, awaiting the result of final returns. Three Republicans and two Democrats were leading their opponents at the three-quarter mark.

The Democrats were Lt. Gov. George D. Nye and Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney. Republican C. William O'Neill was leading Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy; Republican Roger W. Tracy was pacing Democrat Frank M. Quinn to succeed Ebright as treasurer, and George H. Bender apparently had taken the congress-at-large seat away from Democrat Stephen M. Young.

Solons' Threats Recalled With Tax Levy Slap

A big round "no" from Circleville voters Tuesday on a one-mill tax levy to provide more city government operating funds may force city council to seek other means of raising the money from the taxpayers.

Needing a 60 percent majority to pass, the levy managed to garner only 47 percent of the votes.

Lined up against the tax were 1,618 voters, while only 1,482 indicated a willingness to pay it.

The issue was placed before the people by city council, which in its campaign stated that the need for additional revenue was so great that if the levy failed, it might be necessary to impose a municipal sales tax, or a city income tax.

The lawmakers also warned that if the levy failed to pass, the city might be obliged to cut down on fire and police protection, to curtail street lights.

The solons claimed that the need for more money is a result of the doubling of city government cost over the last 10 years.

The general fund balance last year was $31,000, will be about $20,000 this year.

Columbus Poll Chiefs Check Irregularity

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — Franklin County election board investigators stood by last night while ballot boxes of a south side polling place were opened.

The investigators were to detach the perforated number stubs from ballots dropped in the box.

The "irregularity" of leaving the number stubs on the ballots was discovered by Eugene T. Spetnagel when he voted in the third ward of Precinct J, Columbus.

The number stubs should be torn off the ballot before it is placed in the box. The number could be used, if not detached, to identify the voter. The number of ballots cast is determined by number stubs and checked against the count of the actual ballots.

Spetnagel said he asked the election official to tear off the stub, but met with "firm" resistance. He said he called the election board about the matter and two investigators were sent to the polling place.

The poll workers then were instructed to detach the number stubs.

'Impy' Elbows Big Tammany Hall, Is Elected Mayor Of New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—The boss man of the biggest city in the United States, capital of the United Nations, financial center of the world, today and for the next three years, is a guy everybody knows as "Impy."

By the hundreds of thousands, New York voters knocked the "acting" off the title of dapper, Italian-born Vincent R. Impellitteri, and named him mayor in a popular uprising against Tammany Hall. His plurality was 303,291.

Impy, given the brush by the Democratic machine, swept to victory in an anti-gambling reform wave he spearheaded by naming Thomas F. Murphy, the successful prosecutor of Alger Hiss, as police commissioner.

He literally came in as a man without a party—at least, he was the only candidate of the "Experience Party," a "bullet" organization for the "lone wolf" candidate and his supporters.

"My frank opinion," he said, in his victory speech, "is that I got just as many votes from Republicans as Democrats. I got votes from everybody but Communists."

"And I'm pretty proud of that."

O'Mahoney Seen New Majority Leader Choice

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., is favored today in the impending party contest for the Senate Democratic leadership now held by defeated Scott Lucas of Illinois.

Both Lucas and Senate Majority Whip Francis Myers of Pennsylvania were overwhelmed in the Republican tide recorded in Tuesday's off-year elections.

Lucas will serve out his term as majority leader for the remainder of this Congress, but the Democratic post must be filled anew when the 82nd Congress meets Jan. 3.

A bitter struggle for the job is not out of the question, although the election results may make it less attractive.

Administration officials said that O'Mahoney, a veteran of 17 years in the Senate and a staunch supporter of President Truman, automatically heads the list of possible candidates for the leadership.

But there are other strong potential contenders.

They include Sens. Clinton P. Anderson, (D) N. M., Brien McMahon, (D) Conn., Richard B. Russell, (D) Ga., Ernest W. McFarland, (D) Ariz., and Lyndon Johnson, (D) Texas.

Anderson may have strong support, informed sources say, because of his legislative record through three House terms, his experience as secretary of agriculture in the Truman cabinet, and his campaign leadership.

Gambler 'Wins' 5-To-1 Shot

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Gambler Joseph B. Fauver was on the wrong end of a five-to-one deal but he won, anyway.

Fauver, who once pleaded guilty to a gambling charge, served as target for his wife's pistol practice and suffered a minor wound in the foot. The bullet that hit his foot was the only one of five rounds police said Mrs. Fauver fired.

She was held under $500 bond on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

County Girls' Steer Brings Top Money

Two Madison Township 4-H Club girls have a right to feel proud. They are Jonie and Rosalie Cline, 10 and 11 years old respectively, whose choice 4-H Club steer recently brought top money during a junior market day sale in Columbus.

Their steer was auctioned off during the special youngster's exposition for 45½ cents per pound, the best price of the day.

Unlike other livestock events in which stock is entered by youngsters, the junior market day stock is not formally judged but is placed in the auction ring, where the watchful eyes of the buyers pick out the choicest grades.

The proud youngsters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Cline, are members of the Madison Livewires 4-H Club. The steer which was sold was their project this year.

Auto Title Tally Drops

A drop was noted in the number of auto titles issued in Pickaway County clerk of courts office in October.

Clerk A. L. Wilder reported that 553 titles were issued last month, compared to 719 for September.

Mortgage lien notations in October totaled 202, in September, 286. Cancellations totaled 192 last month, 229 in September.

Sixty-five new cars and 15 new trucks were purchased in October, while the month before 79 new cars, 23 new trucks and two new buses were bought.

Taft Victory Raps Outsiders

AKRON, Nov. 8—State Republican Chairman Ray C. Bliss early today declared that Senator Taft's victory "clearly points out that pressure groups cannot intimidate Ohio citizens."

"Senator Taft's victory reflects the crusade that was waged by Republicans, independents and thinking Democrats to demonstrate that Ohio citizens know

Second Woman's Body Taken From River

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8—The identity of a mutilated woman's body recovered from the Ohio river near Cincinnati remained a mystery today while authorities attempted to confirm the identification of another woman's body found in the river less than 24 hours before.

The latest discovery was made late yesterday by the crew of the tugboat "Kenton" downstream from Lawrenceburg, Ind. The body had been decapitated and had no arms or legs. The torso was turned over to the Hamilton County coroner's office for a pathologist's examination.

The first woman, tentatively identified as Nora Jean Isaacs, a 19-year-old Covington, Ky., girl who had been reported missing, was bound with wire and was weighted with five pieces of metal.

Police said they are searching for a male acquaintance of the missing Isaacs girl.

A coroner's report said the first victim was an expectant mother and had died approximately two weeks before as the result of a skull fracture.

Ebright Takes 66 Counties, But Still Loses

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Don H. Ebright carried 66 of the 88 Ohio counties—but lost the election to Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The six-term Republican state treasurer just couldn't come through in the big ones. The 22 counties Lausche captured included Cuyahoga, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lorain, Lucas, Mahoning, Summit, Montgomery and Trumbull.

Robert A. Taft, in overwhelming Democrat State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to retain his Senate seat, captured 83 of the 88 counties, losing only Jefferson, Lawrence, Pike, Summit and Belmont. Taft even captured Cuyahoga County, normally a Democrat stronghold.

A sidelight was the fact that Ferguson did win Belmont and Lawrence Counties while Lausche didn't. The governor has been under fire within his own party in the two counties because of his anti-gambling crusade in Lawrence County and the liquor department's raids on fraternal organizations in Belmont.

Dr. Adkins' Friend Dies

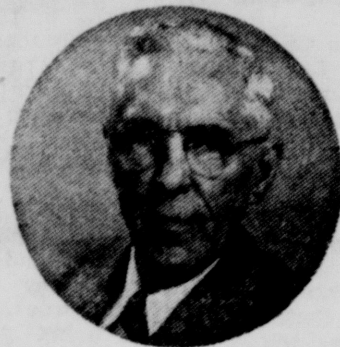

Dr. Dorothy Adkins, native of Circleville, has been called to Ohio by the death of a professor friend.

Funeral services are to be held at 10 a. m. Thursday for Dr. George McClellan, 42, who died as the result of a fall in Los Angeles. He had been a professor in UCLA, was known in Circleville following visits here.

Dr. Adkins, psychology professor in the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C., is returning to Ohio by air to attend the funeral services.

Dr. McClellan called Columbus "home" although he had no immediate survivors.

He didn't. The governor has been under fire within his own party in the two counties because of his anti-gambling crusade in Lawrence County and the liquor department's raids on fraternal organizations in Belmont.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's a boy who is really frank. His problem is that he's a little guy, not the least bit handsome and says he's "no good at sports." So how can he ever hope to be popular enough in school (he's a freshman now) to have fun and dates?

He feels "inferior," he tells me, because he's not big enough for sports, and when he went to dancing school he was always one of the last boys chosen when it was "ladies choice." This keeps his self-confidence down to zero and he's pretty sure right now that high school will be four dreary years of "all work and no play."

But it "ain't necessarily so." Some of the best golfers aren't tall. A world champion table tennis player weighed only about 130 pounds. Some short boys are whizzes on the dance floor with girls their size. So what's all the gloom about?

Choose sports that don't require height and weight—golf, tennis, table tennis, swimming, bowling, etc. Brush up on dancing and get acquainted with a girl about your height; she'd love to go to school dances with you, so why miss part of high school fun?

You don't have to weigh in to play bridge and canasta... or to have Friday night movie dates, double or single. There's room for you in school organizations such as the band, glee, dramatic, science or camera club.

Avoid trying to win attention by showing off, wise-cracking or by "acting big" in any way. Scale your sports to your size and there's plenty of fun ahead for you! For help with personal problems, write to Elinor Williams at this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

The 47-story American Insurance Union Building, now the Leveque-Lincoln Tower, was completed in Columbus in 1927 at a cost of $8 million.

Fats And Oils Prices Expected To Move Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Government farm economists predict that prices to farmers for most fats and oils will average more next year than this as a result of the defense program.

They say that increased consumers' income and industrial activity will sustain a strong home demand, reinforced by a continued strong export demand in Marshall Plan countries.

In a summary of the "fats and oils" situation, the experts think that production will drop slightly at the same time supplies are being used up more rapidly in paints, varnishes, linoleum, chemicals rubber and other industrial products.

Also, they say that total exports may drop a little, but exports of lard, tallow, greases, soybeans and soybean oil will remain high. In response to an increased demand from industry and government stockpiling, they think that imports of non-food fats and oils will rise.

Imports of flaxseed, linseed oil, butter, most edible oils other than olive oil, and inedible tallow and greases are being limited through controls authorized by legislation effective until July 1, 1951.

ANOTHER BRIGHT PAGE

NOW THAT Korea is becoming more quiet, the United States Far East Air Force has an opportunity to look over the score sheet, to discover it has completed a tremendous task, and has written another bright page in the history of American aviation.

Since June 26, the day after the invasion of South Korea, the force has flown more than 50,000 individual combat missions, more than half of which were made by fighter planes. Bombers and transports accounted for the remainder.

During the 120 days of the campaign more than 35,000 tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy; more than 27,000,000 rounds of .50 caliber ammunition were fired; 75,000 rockets were fired and 850,000 gallons of gasoline fire bombs were dropped.

In addition 20,000 medical patients were evacuated. It is not surprising the invaders were all but blasted from the earth, and forced to retreat in considerable disorder.

The Air Force saved the day in Korea, holding and hindering the enemy while ground and naval forces were being rushed to the scene. In World War II, both in Japan and Europe, U. S. bombers made great contributions to victory. Planes may not win a war, but they can do a bangup job of fixing it for the other services to move in.

NOT ENOUGH SEATS

AMONG the buildings in London which the Luftwaffe demolished a decade ago, one of the most ancient was not the House of Commons, which dated from no later than 1840-50. That was modern as buildings in Great Britain go.

The wrecked House of Commons was but part of that massive group of Gothic structures, rising on the banks of the Thames, known as the Houses of Parliament. Here, in this vast concourse of brick and stone, were Lords and Commons, members' offices, dining rooms, libraries, a residence for the Speaker, and much besides that went into the vast British ritual of government.

Wrecked and burned out under a rain of German bombs, the House of Commons has been rebuilt and is now to be opened for formal business. Craftsmanship as to stone and woodwork is in the finest British hand tradition. The King, who has not been permitted to enter the House of Commons since the time of Charles I, was given a sneak preview.

There is a Churchill arch of rubble, set amid smooth stone; there are enlarged press and public galleries; there is air conditioning and amplification. But the House of Commons itself remains small enough for conversation, its original size.

How British, to rebuild a room with 437 seats for 625 members!

'Selective' Price Control System Called Unworkable | West German Armed Force Despite French Opposition?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Government officials privately have just about written off the idea of "selective" price controls.

One key stabilization executive said, "Once we start imposing controls, they're going to snowball over the entire economy."

This official cited steel as an example of the snowballing process. If steel production is placed under ceilings, then controls will have to be slapped on steel's chief ingredients—iron ore and coal. If the government regulates coal prices, there will be an immediate demand for curbing the costs of other fuels.

In addition, price controls must be accompanied by wage ceilings in the industry controlled. Once one group of workers' wages are frozen the freeze will have to be extended to other industries to avoid displacement of the nation's manpower.

So government experts have concluded there is no such thing as "selective" or partial controls. It's all or nothing.

● EUROPEAN DEFENSE—Military experts in Washington expect West German armed forces to be in uniform early next year despite stubborn French opposition.

Informed opinion is that the Germans will be organized in units similar to the regimental combat teams the United States employed so successfully in World War II and lately in Korea.

Previously the Pentagon wanted to integrate German units of division size into the European defense force but probably will approve the smaller combat-team unit to win French support.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Soviet Russia still continues an active and intense campaign for "peace." In the Aesopian language of Marxism, peace means something very different from anything we understand by that noble word.

To us, peace can only mean a world without war, without the fear of imminent war, without devoting most of swollen budgets to war purposes. To us, war can bring no benefits. The last two wars in which we have engaged have brought to our people an altered economic and political system and a degradation of public morals.

To Russia, peace means something altogether different. To them, it means the unification of the world, by war or revolution or other means, into a Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics, under the Marx-Leninist philosophy presided over by the motherland, Russia.

Since 1917, Russia has been moving steadily in one direction to achieve this goal. In every country, there are Marxists who sincerely believe that the monolithic peace described above is a proper cause for lifelong devotion. If we question their sincerity, we misunderstand their conduct and the intensity of their affiliation. Also, we underestimate the strength of their effort.

That is the essential error which the American government has been making since 1933, when we resumed relations with Russia. Roosevelt, Truman, Harriman, Byrnes, Acheson—the list is long and includes Republicans and non-party liberals as well as Democrats—assumed that Russia was merely a nation, playing politics as we play it and that deals and compromises could be made, which, while they lasted, served their purposes.

This view was erroneous because it failed to take into account that in the Marxian assumptions, Russia was not more than one country in a world to be conquered; that the ultimate objective must be and is one government for the entire world. When Wendell Willkie, a d o c a t e d one world, he used a phrase that sounded good to a generation weary of war. He did not realize that what the Russians meant by one world was a Marxist world, achieved by force.

And so, when Mr. Truman made his off-the-cuff remarks about a Red herring, he did not grasp that the ultimate conquest of the United States by Marxism is not only an objective but has been more than 30 years in the making.

It was largely as part of that objective that when the Harold Ware group was organized in 1934 to infiltrate high offices in government, the training ground was the AAA and the Nye committee, and then the Communists concentrated in three areas: the State Department, the Treasury and the CIO.

In the State Department and the Treasury, these Communists devoted themselves largely to the China problem. Their object was to eliminate the Nationalist government of China and to substitute for it Soviet China, headed by Russian-trained Chinese Communists.

Within the United States, they devoted themselves to giving Chiang Kai-shek a bad name, particularly as the head of a corrupt clique incapable of action. They termed the Chinese Communists "Agrarian reformers."

At any rate, they succeeded in turning American opinion away from Chiang in spite of his heroic resistance to Communism.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"TELL ME about Michael," Fleming asked Liza as they drove along.

"I like him, Robert, mainly I suppose because George did. But I don't think he'll ever amount to anything. He's terribly mixed up."

"You think so?" asked Fleming, in surprise. "He always seemed to have uncommon poise, to me, coupled with drive. His laziness is assumed, you know; he is really inordinately ambitious. Also, he appears to know where he is going."

"Professionally, perhaps," admitted Liza. "I wouldn't know about that. I was thinking of his attitude toward women."

He said, amused, "I wouldn't say he was too mixed up there. From what I have heard he gets around a good deal, plays the field, makes a swift retreat when necessary."

"That's where he's mixed up. He should permit the capture—"

said Liza—"and the more I talk to members of your sex the more startled I am by their enormous conceit—and settle down with some nice, wholesome girl, one with common sense and intelligence."

"Sounds horrible, a fate worse than death."

"You talk like Michael. Seriously, he needs balance and responsibility. Yes, even a ranch-type house on the island, with a deep freeze."

"Come again?"

"Just symbols. When the apartment is in order, and I have attended to more urgent matters, I must look around and find such a girl for him."

"He'll take off for China."

"It won't do him any good," said Liza serenely. "Tell me, is anyone else to be at the Goddards'?"

"Hiram Mason," Fleming grinned somewhat wryly. "He was asked, I fear, for you."

"Why fear?"

"This time it's my vanity that stands revealed. I escort you," he reminded her, "but I presume that the Goddards do not consider me, in relation to you, in anything but an avuncular light."

She put her hand on his arm. "Never mind, Robert, you know that I don't particularly like Hiram Mason," she said.

1. In what state is the Grand Canyon National park?
2. Today broadcasting is either AM or FM; which is the shorter wave?
3. In what Italian city is the famous Leaning Tower?
4. What Army officer normally has command of a regiment?
5. On the border between what two countries does the statue, "Christ of the Andes," stand?

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Former Prime Minister of England, Winston Churchill, should be heartily congratulated on his birthday today. Katherine Hepburn and June Haver, actresses, and Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, are also on today's birthday list.

YOUR FUTURE

Go out of your way to be kind and tactful. You may encounter opposition in your next year, but you should enjoy a good deal of success and much happiness. Born on this date, a child is likely to make money easily and lose it just as easily. Success and popularity are indicated, however.

IT'S BEEN SAID

When a man is wrong and won't admit it, he always gets angry.—Thomas C. Haliburton.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. Arizona.
2. FM—frequency modulation.
3. Pisa.
4. A colonel.
5. Argentina and Chile.

Best estimates are that about 25,000 thoroughly screened Germans, many of them Wehrmacht veterans but none with pronounced Nazi characteristics, will be recruited and trained as "shock troops."

The Germans probably will not be permitted to have any officers higher in rank than colonel and the German units will be trained under close supervision of United States officers.

● WRONG TARGET—The government, in the person of Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan, got a lot of criticism over the program to have women and girls make United Nations flags for display on UN day, but the barrage was misdirected.

Actually, the project did not originate with the government. It was conceived by the National Grange, private United States farm organization, and subsequently endorsed by the other three major American farm groups.

The Agriculture department did ultimately give the program its blessing and get behind it—and federal officials went ahead with the scheme despite the "beefs" of the Daughters of the American Revolution and some veterans groups.

Washington officialdom regards the criticism as a new low in pettiness at a time when American soldiers are fighting and dying in Korea under the UN flag and supreme direction of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as UN commander.

● POLITICAL SWITCH—Democrats still hope to capture New Hampshire, despite the ruling of that state's ballot law commission eliminating Wesley Powell as an independent candidate.

Powell failed by a narrow margin to win the GOP senatorial nomination from incumbent Senator Charles W. Tobey. When he then decided to run as an independent, Democrats thought they were in—that Powell and Tobey would split the Republican vote and assure the election of Democrat Emmet J. Kelley.

The ballot commission spiked this possibility, but Democrats still believe the bitterness of the Powell-Tobey fight may have injured the GOP beyond repair before Nov. 7.

They recall that Tobey was elected to his present term by only 4,000 votes—a very slim margin for a New England Republican.

He thought, But she likes me, is even fond of me. He had an adventurous vision of retirement, of travel, and not alone. He shook his head. Lightning does not strike twice. Nor should Liza make the same mistake twice. He corrected that in his thoughts. The first time, it was not a mistake; the second time, it would be. The trouble was, he thought irritably, he didn't feel old with Liza. George hadn't. Nor had Liza thought of George as old. She might not think that George's good friend, Robert Fleming, was old. She was conditioned to men greatly her senior. He had noticed often since her arrival in town how she turned to, confided in, and depended upon him. Almost as if he—

He shook himself and the car swerved.

"What are you thinking, is something wrong?" asked Liza solicitously.

"Nothing, except that you are a most charming companion," he replied.

He was hatless, his thick white hair bare to the sun. Liza slid her eyes round to him and he turned to smile at her. She thought, Oh dear! She thought, I must do something about it.

What, she didn't know; but it would come to her, in due time.

The Goddards were nice people; they had a nice house, set in a plentiful of fields, well checked, and orchards. Mrs. Goddard was nearly sixty, her husband somewhat older and a retired industrialist. They had their quota of children and grandchildren, none present this fine May weekend, with the trees like green flames, the rose blossoms, and the pure, blue sky.

Hiram had arrived before them and was voluble with reproach.

"You might have asked me to drive up," he told Fleming.

The doctor regarded him unremorsefully. "Thought you'd drive yourself," he answered.

"I came by train, I haven't taken my car out yet, as a matter of fact. Mrs. Lennox is looking extremely well," he added.

"Liza always looks well. She's as healthy as any woman has a right to be," said Fleming, juggling the ice in his drink and turning from Hiram to talk vegetable gardens with his host. "I'm a city man myself," he said, "I don't like to be away from it for longer than a holiday, doubtless because, for so long, I couldn't be. Yet, like most city men, I have always fancied a vegetable garden and of course chicken raising."

While the men talked, Liza was upstairs with her hostess in a big guest room which overlooked the terrace and a swimming pool. She had opened her suitcase, to unpack.

Kathy Goddard said, "Leave it, my dear. Do you want anything pressed?"

"I can do it myself, before dinner," Liza said. "I'm an old hand. I learned to be expert when very young and when George and I traveled we often found ourselves in hotels which were short of service."

Kathy thought, How refreshing to meet anyone so unspoiled. Aloud she said, "The servant question is more of a problem than ever, especially in the country. But we can easily manage a pressing job." She smiled and went on: "It doesn't seem possible that it's been so long since Paul and I last saw you. We're very happy to be in touch with you again."

"I shall never forget the letter you wrote me when George died," Liza told her. "It was so understanding and kind." She thought that Kathy Goddard, round and placid, was a pretty woman; but you didn't see that immediately; no, first of all you saw her friendliness. Perhaps that was what had kept her pretty.

"George was wonderful," Kathy said. "Everyone who ever knew him misses him. I know we do. If it hadn't been for a chance remark of Bob's I might not have known you were in New York. Shall we go down, Liza? I may call you that?"

"I would hate it if you didn't," Liza put her arm around the older woman's waist. "I'd like to meet your children one day," she said.

"Young Kate is about your age," said Kathy, marveling. It didn't seem possible. Liza looked younger than Kate; she seemed a child until you looked at her eyes. "She lives on the West Coast now. Come along, Liza, or the men will feel neglected."

Fashion Flash

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Ladies, to be modish, must be mannish next Spring.

The big-name designers generally agreed today that the newest 1951 silhouette will be: Straight again, simple again, and definitely more man-tailored than this winter's slim 'n' graceful line.

The return to the mannish means a strong return of the one-button suit—a suit that buttons at the waistline and has deep, low-notched lapels. Under such tailored jackets, the popular blouse will be the severe, plain round-necked and collarless style.

Most decoration on these new Spring suits will appear at the neckline, where jacket lapels will be stiffened, or decorated with braid or hemline cuffs or buttons.

Once again, it'll be sort of a man's world!

Lausche Says 'No Victory' Before Service

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Governor Lausche stated following his reelection today that "there will have been no victory for anyone" unless in the next two years governmental service is further developed for the betterment of the people.

He said such service must "strengthen our state and nation, remove injustices" and "develop programs within our constitutional limitations" for the public good.

To Don H. Ebright, the unsuccessful Republican gubernatorial candidate, he said:

"I express my regret that both of us were unable to receive a majority of the votes. For the decency of the campaign which he conducted there can be no question that the people of Ohio and I are grateful," Lausche added.

"Whether victory has come is not determined by the fact that I received more votes than Mr. Ebright; that will only be determined when my service as governor is complete, at which time victory or defeat will be reflected by the quality of governmental service that has been given.

"The people have expressed their judgment, not intending that their will shall be a prey to be avenged, but that through the choice that has been made we will have better government."

Civil War Vet Votes 85th Time

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 8.—One hundred and nine-year-old James A. Hard, said to be the nation's oldest living Civil War veteran, voted yesterday for the 85th time.

He said with a twinkle that "I voted straight Republican."

Hard has missed voting only once since he cast his first ballot for Abraham Lincoln in Nashville, Tenn., in 1864. At that time, Hard was a soldier.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8.—A jury to try 17-year-old Gerald Killinger for the first-degree murder of Harold E. Mast, 24-year-old Medina County farmer, will be selected today in the court of Judge Windsor E. Kellogg.

Killinger has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. His trial is expected to take at least five days. The youth confessed that he killed Mast Oct. 5 so that Max Amerman, 27, who admitted plotting the slaying, could woo Mast's widow, Randi, 24.

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

Yesterday, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the 1930s. She was sporting a square-cut that looked like the searchlight on the old Albany night boat.

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigarette.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranies?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"YES, IF A MAN in his 50s can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"The oil fella?"

"That's the one," said the star. "Know something? I probably would be married to him today if not for these Sobranies."

"Tell me about it," I prodded.

"Well, it's not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joe threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Seeman, Jules Glaenzer and that crowd. And it was quite a shindig—guinea hen under glass, buckets of champagne and gold-tipped Sobranies on every table. I was one of the girls invited—but what I didn't know until later was that Joel intended to surprise me and announce our engagement that night."

"Were you stuck on the big lug?"

"Not particularly," said the star, "but he was a nice enough fella and had made the announcement I don't doubt but that I would have gone along with it."

"What stopped him?"

"It was one of those things," said the actress. "A little after midnight, when I came back to my table after a dance, I found my pocketbook was missing. I started to look for it, but Big Joel told me to relax and handed me a hundred bucks. I thanked him but kept right on looking, and when he asked me why I was so worried about the pocketbook I told him there was three hundred dollars in it."

"I had hardly gotten the words out of my mouth when the woman who worked in the ladies' room came up and handed me my purse—said she found it under the make-up table."

"BIG JOEL LOOKED at me

and grinned kind of funny. 'It ain't that I don't trust you, honey,' he said, 'but a man wants to be awfully sure about the lady he's going to make his wife. Forgive me, but—would you mind opening that bag and showing me the three hundred?'

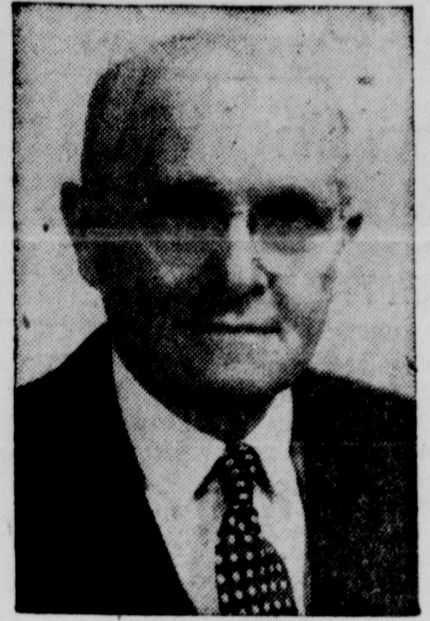

"Naturally I did no such thing. I picked up my bag, gave him one of those 'how-dare-you' looks and walked straight out of the room."

"In other words," I small-joked, "Big Joel caught you with your purse down."

"Nothing of the sort," said the movie star. "Matter of fact, I had been paid off that afternoon for a series of modeling jobs and had closer to four hundred than three in my bag."

"Then why didn't you open it?"

"How could I?" said the actress. "He'd have seen the ten packs of Sobranie Gold-Tips I had swiped off the tables."

Famed 'Oscar' Is Dead At 84

NEW PALTZ, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The world's most famous caterer Oscar of the Waldorf—died at his country home in here Monday at the age of 84.
 Death came unexpectedly to the great host whose real name was Oscar Tschirky, but who was known as "Oscar" to kings and queens, Presidents, diplomats, leaders of business, arts and society and the world at large.
 He suffered a heart attack

while playing checkers with his son, August, in the quiet of his country home far removed from the clatter of society to which he had contributed for over 60 years.
 Fifty-four of Ohio's counties each have more than 2,000 employed in manufacturing.

Something New For Faster Growth of Pigs!

Announcing addition of A.P.F. Supplement with antibiotic activity!

to

Master Mix Sow and Pig Concentrate with Methio-Vite
 Master Mix Pig Starter with Methio-Vite
 Master Mix 35% Hog Concentrate

What is an Antibiotic?

It is a compound formed by living organisms through special fermentation that prevents growth of other living organisms.

What Will Antibiotic Activity Do?

FOR GROWING PIGS

It will help you get faster growth on pigs from weaning time to market weight. The antibiotic activity helps to keep your pigs in a healthier condition, enabling them to eat more and grow faster.

Experiment station research at Illinois, Purdue, Michigan, Iowa, and Florida has shown that growing pigs made 10% to 20% faster gains when antibiotic activity was added to a completely balanced ration.

FOR SOWS

Antibiotic activity added to a completely balanced ration for bred sows will have a beneficial effect during the gestation and lactation periods. While the results have not been as outstanding as in growing pigs, antibiotic activity is beneficial in controlling harmful organisms.

From McMillen Feed Research

McMillen Feed Mills has added an A.P.F. supplement with antibiotic activity to Sow and Pig Concentrate with Methio-Vite, 35% Hog Concentrate, and Pig Starter with Methio-Vite.

This antibiotic activity does not add to the nutritional value of Master Mix Feeds, but through its ability to combat many harmful organisms, will help to keep the pigs and sows in healthier condition.

This new A.P.F. supplement does not replace Methio-Vite. Experiments conducted by McMillen Feed Research revealed that sows fed a well balanced ration containing Methio-Vite and this new supplement, farrowed 16% more live pigs and weaned 28% more pigs than sows fed the same ration containing the antibiotic activity, but without Methio-Vite.

New uses for this antibiotic activity may develop. When they are determined and proven, we will report to you about them.

ASHVILLE TILT CANCELLED

CHS Cagers Have Rugged 19-Game Schedule Ahead

Circleville high school's 1950-51 basketball team has a schedule of 19 games facing it this season—and it's a tough one.

Tiger Coach Dick West, who issued his first call to practice Monday, said this year's card contains seven brand new opponents.

From the fans who have viewed the new card comes a moan: "What's West trying to do to us?"

But the coach has things well in hand, apparently, as he plans for the future of his cage team. The new schedule contains the names of Columbus North, Aquinas and Columbus Central, along with Ironton, Portsmouth, Zanesville and Hamilton Township.

FOR YEARS, Circleville has met lesser local teams during the season only to flub out when district "A" tournament time rolls around.

"The boys just haven't been used to the kind of ball they get in the tournament," West said. "This year they will meet some of the top district teams during the season and will be better prepared for the big boys."

One thing is missing from this year's card which will make some local fans glad, some sad.

That is the absence of Ashville's Bronco "B" basketball team, traditional foe of the former Tiger combines.

West explained that with the new, tougher schedule there just isn't room to fit in a match against the Ashville team.

Local fans who have attached a sentiment to the annual clash between the two neighboring teams are saddened by the absence.

On the other hand, fans who have seen mighty CHS teams trampled by the smaller Ashville school in the past are in favor of the change.

"We (Circleville) have nothing to gain by playing the little school," say they. "If we win, we're bullies. If we lose, we're worthless."

ANOTHER innovation has been added to this season's schedule.

Coach West has carded two games during Christmas for his cagers involving a two-day road trip to the Ohio River.

The Tigers are slated to meet Ironton Dec. 28, stay overnight along the river and meet Portsmouth Dec. 29.

Circleville will have only four weeks of practice now before it opens its season Dec. 1 against the Chillicothe Cavaliers, West's Alma mater.

Last year, Circleville was the only team capable of handling the Cavaliers a double drubbing.

West added that his team's game against Hamilton Township is only tentative so far, pending confirmation by the Hamilton coach.

Complete schedule of the 1950-51 Tiger season follows:

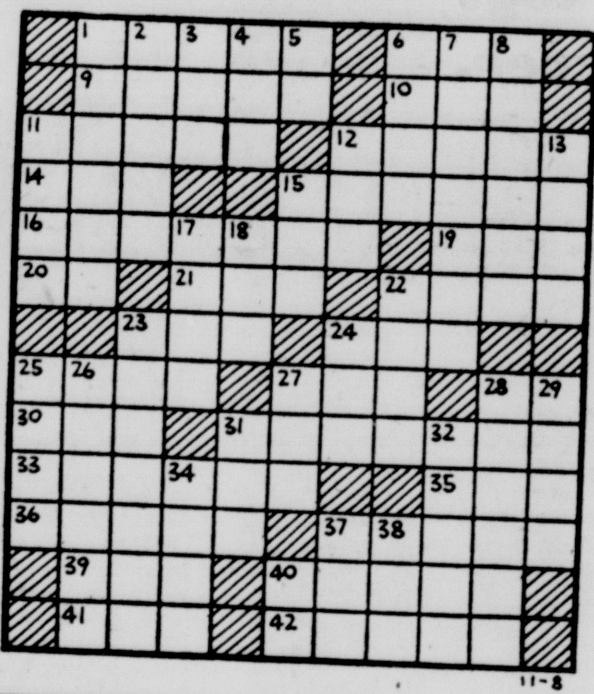

- Dec. 1—at Chillicothe.
- Dec. 5—Columbus Aquinas.
- Dec. 8—Columbus North.
- Dec. 15—Washington C. H.
- Dec. 19—at Westerville.
- Dec. 22—Lancaster.

- Feb. 16—at Hamilton Township.
- Feb. 20—at Columbus Central.

Saturday's Answer

Wisconsin, Illinois Spies Irked By Ohio State's Grid Powerhouse

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 — There were a lot of dissatisfied football fans in town after the Ohio State special pulled out for Columbus, but nobody knew exactly why.

After all, the Buckeyes had shown a highly versatile attack in beating a plausible Northwestern team, 32 to 0, last Saturday. It was a juggernaut without challenge that has rolled to an unprecedented total of 163 points (averaging 54.1-3) for its last three Big Ten games.

What they hadn't seen, however, was the point that pestered the espionage set from Wisconsin and Illinois.

All they knew was that the Buckeyes were running at half-throttle for 56 out of a possible 60 minutes and still were able to beat the Wildcats. It had been much the same in the two preceding week ends.

Against Minnesota, the Buckeyes had attempted to keep the total decent but just couldn't stop short of 48-0. Against Iowa, they finally wound up with 83 points.

Against Northwestern, they won, to every practical purpose, in the first 3:44 minutes of the game. Anything after that was strictly for the archives, leading many an objective witness with conjectures instead of conclusions.

Irish Combine Over The Hump?

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8—The Cleveland Indians will televise their 77 home games again next season.

Club President Ellis Ryan said he is convinced that TV hasn't seriously harmed attendance so far. The Tribe is drawing up a 1951 contract with a local brewing firm, sponsor of the telecasts in 1949.

Terms of the new one year contract were not revealed. Some of the Indians' road games may also be telecast, Ryan indicated.

Another brewing company holds both AM and FM radio rights and that contract has two more years to run.

Jack Graney and Jimmy Dudley handled the TV and radio play by play accounts, but no decision has been made on the 1951 setup.

WHAT ELSE can one do but guess about a team that right after the first whistle Saturday scored twice, covering 144 yards and in the process used only one real play from scrimmage?

Or a team which, on the run of the season, scores 257 total points to 74 for the combined opposition; yet the disparity in total yardage is only a ratio of four yards to three? Or for that matter, a team which restricts Southern Methodist's running to minus-7 for the day, but loses the ball game, 32-27?

There were times last Saturday when Vic Janowicz seemed to be the entire attack, then suddenly the Buckeyes were without him and functioned even better.

Without him, Ohio State drove to its last touchdown with a show of gusto and talent that made Tony Curcillo, Walt Klevay and Chuck Gandee look like All-Americans in the making.

That would suggest that Ohio State can be equally good without Janowicz, which is mildly incredible.

New Ticket Plan Booked

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — Bob Ries, assistant ticket director of Ohio State university, has announced a new plan of distribution of basketball tickets for the team's 11 home games.

Students will get a choice of four out of 11 games instead of the three they got last year. The claiming period begins 12 days before each home game and lasts for six days. After that, all remaining tickets will be sold to the general public.

Students may see more than the four allotted games by purchasing $1 and $1.50 reserved seats. There will also be 300 non-reserved seats for students selling for 50 cents.

Don Black Again In Hospital

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 — Don Black, former Cleveland Indians' pitcher who nearly died of a cerebral hemorrhage in 1948, was reported in fairly good condition in Charity hospital today after he collapsed in downtown Cleveland.

Dr. Spencer Braden, noted brain surgeon who performed an operation on Black after he was stricken during a game in the stadium, said that the illness was in no way related to the injury he suffered in 1948.

Swine Growers Are Urged Work For Healthier Pigs

Hog farmers in Pickaway County this week were being urged to join swine growers all over the nation in a concerted effort to reduce heavy losses of baby pigs.

Dr. Eddie Hedges, Circleville veterinarian, said that the American Veterinary Medical Association has issued a special appeal for stronger action to curb pig losses.

He reported that the AVMA says that efforts should be directed toward getting more pigs per litter and toward saving more of those that are farrowed. When litters are small or when death losses run higher than 15 or 20 percent, the trouble usually can be traced to faulty management practices and failure to act fast enough when infectious diseases strike.

New Dependency Ruling Noted

Parents of deceased World War II prisoners of war no longer need prove dependency to receive benefits.

Pickaway County Service Officer James P. Shea said Wednesday that a new bill recently approved does away with the necessity of proving dependency.

Shea said the parents are eligible for benefits if the person died in prisoner of war camp or since and if there is no widow or dependent children who survive.

Application for benefits may be made through the service officer in Pickaway Courthouse.

ment practices and failure to act fast enough when infectious diseases strike.

AS A STANDARD procedure for preventing and controlling losses, the veterinary medical organization recommends these steps:

1. Start with strong, healthy breeding stock. If pigs are born dead, weak, or defective, have boars and sows checked for possible hereditary defects or conditions that may make them unsuitable for further breeding.

2. Keep herds healthy by blocking entrances for disease germs. Travelers and trucks that go from one farm to another should be kept out of the hog lot, and newly purchased animals should be given a health examination and kept in quarantine for a minimum of one month.

3. Feed a ration that is balanced with respect to grains, mineral and vitamin supplements, and animal protein, and keep the entire herd on good pasture as much of the year as possible.

4. Put newborn pigs on clean ground well removed from the hog lot.

Haul them to their new quarters in a crate instead of walking them through the lot, to prevent exposure to germs and parasites of the older animals.

Pens should be moved to new, clean ground at regular intervals and pastures rotated for all species of stock on the farm.

5. Have pigs immunized

against cholera, and against erysipelas if conditions warrant.

6. Get an immediate diagnosis of disease outbreaks and move pigs that are still healthy to another part of the farm—far away from the sick ones.

At least a half dozen diseases that were not formerly considered important are now taking a toll in the pig crop, the AVMA says.

TRANSMISSIBLE gastroenteritis, infectious rhinitis, and a blood disease called erythrozoosis are listed among swine infections that have gained importance during recent years. These and others have teamed up with old-timers such as cholera, erysipelas, dysentery, influenza, brucellosis, tuberculosis, and nutritional and parasitic ailments to make swine raising a bad financial risk for farmers who neglect disease control.

67th Year-263

Democrat Margin In Congress Gets Whittled Down By Republican Drive

Labor Bosses Are Handed Stinging Defeat As Taft Walks Away With Senatorial Race

Popular Lausche Is Also OK'd

Ferguson Says He Is 'Surprised'

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Virtual complete returns from Ohio's record-breaking election show that it's still Republican Senator Taft and Democrat Governor Lausche in bipartisan Ohio.

A tabulation of all but 369 of the state's 10,386 polling places gave "Mr. Republican" an almost-unbelievable margin of 413,783 votes over his labor-backed Democrat opponent, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

But the Independent-minded and personally-popular Lausche, while carrying only 21 of the 88 counties, made them the big ones to lead GOP Six-Term State Treasurer Don H. Ebright by 136,767 ballots.

The tallies from 10,017 voting places:

For U. S. senator—Taft 1,581,122; Ferguson 1,167,339.

For governor—Lausche 1,458,572; Ebright 1,322,117.

Taft's smashing majority carried him to victory in 83 of the 88 counties, losing only Jefferson, Lawrence, Pike, Summit and Belmont Counties in the nation's most important off-year election.

IT WAS A STINGING and bitter defeat for the nation's labor bosses who had marked Taft as their number one target and who had done everything they could, only to wind up with a measly five counties.

In winning a third Senate term, Taft's strength was so great that he pulled enough Republicans along with him to regain control of both the Ohio congressional delegation and the Ohio legislature—prizes wrested from the GOP in the 1948 Truman landslide.

The current Ohio congressional delegation is split 12 to 11 in favor of the Democrats. Under Taft's leadership, the Republicans apparently picked up four seats. This would

Chester Bowles Is Defeated

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 8.—Republican Congressman John Davis Lodge was elected governor of Connecticut today.

Lodge will take office for the first four-year term in the state's history. Previous governors have served two years.

Democrat Governor Chester Bowles conceded the election last night when returns from 139 of the state's 169 towns showed a 10,363 plurality for Lodge. In 1948 Bowles squeezed into office by about 2,200 votes.

10,529 Countians Ballot; Two Incumbents Defeated

Pickaway Countians, 10,529 strong, trooped to the polls Tuesday to place two Democrats and one Republican in local public offices.

In the process they knocked two Republican incumbents out of office.

The Pickaway County vote largest since the 1940 presidential election, when 12,850 appeared at the polls. It was the largest off-year vote ever recorded here.

Winning the race for representative to the state general assembly was Ed Wallace, Democrat, with an unofficial total of 5,231 votes over 4,467 for his opponent, incumbent H. E. Louis, Republican. Wallace carried 23 of the 42 precincts.

Both state senatorial posts were overwhelmingly in favor of keeping Republican Senator Robert A. Taft in his Congressional seat, voting 6,198 to 3,821 against his opponent, Democrat Joseph T. Ferguson.

Governor Frank J. Lausche, Democrat, forged ahead of Don H. Ebright, Republican contender for the top state job, 5,767 to 4,391 in the county.

In the contest for representative to Congress from the 11th district, Walter E. Brehm, Republican, garnered 12 more Pickaway votes than his Democratic challenger, Mell G. Underwood. Vote was 4,712 for Brehm to 4,700 for Underwood, who has conceded defeat.

Both state senatorial posts were carried here by Republicans, George B. Marshall, 4,531, and incumbent Roscoe R. Walcutt, 4,392, over Democrats Grace R. Clifton, 4,076, and incumbent Evan P. Ford, 3,627.

In the race for representative to the state general assembly, Wallace proved strongest in Circleville as he carried all of the 13 precincts.

The contest between Mace and Penn for county commissioner, on the other hand, was close in the city, with Penn carrying two more precincts than Mace. His defeat was meted out in rural precincts.

County voters pointed the finger of approval at George D. Nye, Democrat, for lieutenant governor, returning 4,776 votes to Republican J. Eugene Roberts' 4,551.

THEY PREFERRED Ted W. Brown, Republican, to Charles F. Sweeney, Democrat, for secretary of state, 4,647 to 4,622.

For treasurer of state Roger W. Tracy, Republican, was preferred to Democrat Frank M. Quinn, 4,877 to 4,273.

For attorney general Pickaway Countians indicated a preference for Republican C. William O'Neil over Democrat Herbert S. Duffy, 4,581 to 4,511.

Congressman Brehm Is Given 4,712 Margin

Pickaway County's hottest contest during Tuesday's election centered around the representative to Congress race.

After the smoke had cleared away from the final tabulations, Republican Congressman Walter E. Brehm had carried the county by exactly a dozen votes.

Final results of the contest showed that Incumbent Brehm scored a 4,712 count while Democratic Candidate Mell Underwood Jr. had received 4,700 votes.

Meanwhile, heavy balloting in favor of Brehm in the other four counties represented in the 11th district accounted for Brehm's reelection as congressman by a 4,069-vote majority.

Heaviest support for the congressman was received in Perry County, where he was given a 1,826-vote margin.

Complete results of the balloting in the five 11th district counties follow:

County	Brehm	Underwood
Ross	9,594	8,677
Fairfield	9,676	8,133
Pickaway	4,712	4,700
Hocking	3,400	3,629
Perry	6,141	4,315

Massachusetts Keeps Dever

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Governor Paul A. Dever tonight became the first Democratic chief executive in 16 years to win an off-year election in Massachusetts and the first of his party to win reelection in 18 years.

In Democratic Boston alone 220 of 362 precincts gave the governor 138,740 to 43,692 for his Republican rival, Ex-Lieutenant Governor Arthur W. Coolidge, a veteran campaigner.

The chief executive said: "I will win the election by 250,000, and it might go to 300,000."

BIG CITY MEASURE OK'D

Only One School Issue Fails To Get Approval

Tuesday's election apparently has paved the way to better conditions in Pickaway County schools in the near future.

According to early, unofficial reports of the election, only one bond issue in the county school system failed while all of the current operating expense levies were believed to have passed.

Largest issue in the county—the $475,000 Circleville physical education building program—was believed to have received just a hair more than the required 55 percent.

Unofficial total for the issue was 1,953. There were 1,472 against. Only one of the 14 precincts voting on the issue polled more "no" than "yes" votes. That precinct was 1E.

Lone issue failing to receive the necessary backing as indicated by early reports was the proposed $20,000 Walnut Township school building bond.

ACCORDING TO the returns, Walnut East and West polled only 174 votes in favor of the issue while casting a total of 230 unfavorable tickets.

Bonds which were believed to have passed in the balloting were a $25,000 issue in Williamsport; a $10,000 issue in Wayne Township; and a $16,000 proposal for Darby Township.

Additional counting probably will be conducted to determine whether the Darby Township bond issue actually passed.

However, according to the unofficial tabulation the issue carried when a 56 percent margin was established. A 55 percent margin is required.

Deercreek appeared to be swamped with favorable opinion of its bond in the early count as the voters of the district voted 528 "for" tickets as opposed by only 156 "against" votes.

Five county school tax levies also were believed to have been given approval.

They are a six-mill renewal for Scioto Township, believed to have passed by a 403-145 margin; a three-mill renewal and an increase of two mills for Darby Township school which was believed passed by a margin of 330 to 92; a three-mill renewal for Muhlentberg Township school, which unofficially received 164 favorable votes as compared to only 43 "against" tickets; a six-mill renewal for Deercreek Township, believed to have passed by an overwhelming majority of 408 to 147; and a three-mill renewal for Saltcreek Township school.

THE SALT CREEK renewal was decidedly not definite as of Wednesday, however, as election officials puzzled over circumstances surrounding the proposal.

GOP Chieftains Are Reelected

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Democrats today won narrow control of the new 82nd Congress, but the Republicans in a smashing display of off-year resurgence elected the GOP's outstanding leaders across the nation.

Figures tell the story of greatly lessened administration control over the new Congress. The Senate will line up this way: Democrats, 49; Republicans, 47.

In the 81st Congress, which goes out of existence Dec. 31, the lineup is: Democrats, 54; Republicans, 42.

The House setup in the 81st Congress is: Democrats, 259; Republicans, 169; American Labor Party (Rep. Marcantonio, N. Y.) 1; vacancies, 6.

Latest returns show 233 Democrats, 194 Republicans with seats won in the 82nd Congress. The administration's Senate leadership was swept out of office and such top Republicans as Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Colorado were resoundingly reelected.

SENATE MAJORITY Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois was beaten by Former Rep. Everett Dirksen, Pennsylvania's Republican Governor James Duff defeated Senate Majority Whip Francis W. Myers.

Even more surprising was the victory of a comparative unknown, John Marshall Butler, over the veteran Sen. Millard Tydings, (D) Md., chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee.

Political observers agreed that Tydings was beaten on the Communist infiltration issue. He was accused by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., of "white-washing" McCarthy's charges that Red sympathizers had infiltrated the State Department.

Sen. Elbert Thomas, another administration stalwart, went down to defeat in Utah. In gubernatorial races, latest returns indicated that the Republicans probably will pick up seven governorships—five are certain. Should Republicans be elected in Michigan and Arizona, where races are tight, the GOP will have 25 governors.

Trumanite Leaders Whipped

Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson asserted that the voters made it plain that "they are opposed to Socialism in free America."

The Republicans elected six new senators for a net gain of five seats. Sen. Donnell, (R) Mo., was defeated in President Truman's home state.

A terrific volume of voters participated in the elections. Estimates ranged from 40 to 42 million, a record-shattering performance in an off-year.

The voters evidenced grave concern over the future. In effect, they rebuked the Truman administration by slashing its majorities in both House and Senate.

The new Congress must legislate to rearm the nation to meet the world crisis of Communist aggression. In its hands will go such problems as higher tax, rent, price and wage controls, anti-inflation measures and the rearming of Europe and friendly Asia.

THE AMERICAN people actually placed control of the new Congress in the hands of a coalition of Southern anti-administration Democrats and Republicans.

The American people evidenced some dissatisfaction with present Democrat leadership by electing all outstanding Republican critics and actually sweeping the Senate clean of its present Democrat leadership.

The Republican Party's greatest leaders were reelected to high office, even if the Democrats control the House and Senate by narrow margins.

Notable GOP victors were Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, "Mr. Republican" himself, and his right hand lieutenant, Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado.

Others were the GOP presidential ticket of 1948—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

The GOP also defeated three outstanding Democratic senators—the Senate majority leader, Scott Lucas in Illinois; the Democrat whip, Sen. Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; and the Democrat leader of the inquiry into Communist influence in government, Sen. Millard Tydings in Maryland.

On the surface this would indicate a terrific "turn to the right." But the voters were balancing for personal preferences, choosing individuals rather than issues.

The returns thrust three Republicans into the 1952 presidential limelight. Taft almost becomes a favorite although he curbed all such talk during his campaign.

A NEWCOMER, who may have a hat in the GOP ring, is Governor Duff of Pennsylvania who defeated Myers. He was a reluctant last minute supporter of Taft in 1948. Another potentiality is Governor Warren of California.

Dewey renounced all presidential ambitions in the midst of his campaign and declared he favored Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the nomination.

The rank and file of Democrats did very well at the polls. Early today, the Democrats appeared certain of at least 49 seats in the Senate while the Republicans seemed to have won 45 seats.

Two seats, one in Utah and one in Idaho, were still undecided. The Democrats won control of the House of Representatives when final returns showed 224 Democrats had been elected in Tuesday's balloting.

The Democrats need but 218 votes to organize the next House which convenes Jan. 3.

The Republicans had elected 179 members by 4:45 a. m. with many other districts leaning toward them. At that hour, the Republicans had a net gain of only 19 seats when they needed a net gain of 46 seats to win control of the House.

It appeared the Democratic majority in the next House would be between 30 and 40 seats.

In the present House, the Democrats have an 89-vote majority. Any combination of Republicans with Southern Democrats will be costly to the administration.

It seems a paradox that the American voter would elect three outstanding critics of the Truman administration, defeat three of his most powerful Senate leaders and then give the Democrats control of the next Congress.

DEMOCRATS retained seats in Connecticut (2), New York, Rhode Island, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Washington, in addition

Stassen Says He Assumes Acheson To Quit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Harold E. Stassen said today he assumes Secretary of State Acheson will resign in face of the "reputation of the administration's foreign policy, particularly in the Far East."

The former Minnesota governor interpreted Tuesday's elections as an indication the people want Gen. Douglas MacArthur to have a larger say in Far Eastern policy.

Stassen said, however, he was not suggesting that Acheson be replaced by MacArthur.

He explained that "it is not incumbent on us to suggest names for the President's cabinet."

But Stassen emphasized that it is "incumbent on the President to consult Republican Senate leaders on policy in this crisis in the Far East."

Stassen declared that this was the first non-presidential election in which both the Senate majority leader (Scott Lucas, Ill.) and Senate majority whip (Francis Myers, Pa.) were defeated at the same time.

Stassen, a 1948 GOP presidential aspirant, said the elections have left the Republicans in a "healthy situation" in respect to the 1952 White House race. He declined to say whether the results will affect his own political future.

Robert Colburn Is 'Missing' On Draft Records

Another possible delinquent has been reported by Pickaway County draft board.

He is Robert Junior Colburn whose last known address was Mt. Sterling Route 1. Officials said a notice ordering him to report for physical examination Nov. 13 has been returned to the draft office by the postoffice department.

Persons registered under the Selective Service Law are required to keep their draft board informed of any changes in status, such as marriage or change of address.

Write-In Results Still Uncertain

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—The winner of the write-in campaign for the supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Judge Edward C. Turner will not be known until Friday and possibly not until next week.

Secretary of State Charles T. Sweeney instructed county election boards not to report the results by telephone. Instead, the boards were asked to send the write-in counts by mail so as not to retard transmission of other election returns.

tion to eight in the Solid South and Arizona and Nevada in the Far Southwest. They also elected Rep. Thomas C. Hennings in Missouri over Republican Sen. Forrest Donnell for their only gain.

The Republicans meanwhile reelected senators in New Hampshire, Vermont, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Oregon in addition to Taft and Milliken.

They gained five seats by electing Gov. James H. Duff over Sen. Francis Myers in Pennsylvania; John Marshall Butler over Sen. Millard Tydings in Maryland; Former Rep. Everett Dirksen over Sen. Scott Lucas in Illinois; Herman Welker over ex-Sen. D. Worth Clark for the Taylor seat in Idaho and Rep. Richard Nixon over Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas for the Downey seat in California.

This gave the Republicans a total of 16 seats to join their 29 holdover senators for a total of 45.

Two Senate races were in doubt at that hour, one in Utah, the other a second senatorial contest in Idaho.

give the Republicans a 15-to-8 margin. Lausche, however, withstood the Taft tornado by piling up a two-to-one margin in his own home city of Cleveland. His margin in Cuyahoga County soared past the 150,000 mark—a tribute that enabled him to withstand Ebright's downstate strength.

The amazed and disappointed Ferguson conceded defeat at 2 a. m.

At that time he wired Taft that the senator had handed him "the greatest surprise of my entire life."

Taft's margin, great as it was, was not sufficient to capture the governorship for his running mate, six-term state treasurer Don H. Ebright, who conceded Lausche's reelection at 4 a. m. It was the first defeat in Ebright's public career.

Taft's reelection was so evident that he issued a victory statement even before Election Day itself slipped into history. In his Cincinnati home, the senator declared that "my victory signifies that organized labor cannot carry an election on the basis they don't agree with a candidate."

Taft also declared that Ohio's vote was "a declaration of disapproval of President Truman's Socialist program, and the results are favorable for a GOP presidential candidate in 1952."

The senator refused to say, however, if he would seek to be that candidate. He said only that it was "too early to speculate" on the next presidential campaign.

Cleveland, as expected, held the answers to both the senatorial and gubernatorial races. Lausche's two-to-one margin in his home community was more than enough to overcome the downstate lead Taft's magic gave to Ebright. Taft, for his part, lagged only slightly behind Ferguson in what nominally is a Democrat stronghold.

CINCINNATI, the state's second largest community and Taft's home town, gave the senator an eight-to-five margin, although Lausche demonstrated his personal popularity by edging Ebright in that supposed citadel of Republicanism.

Montgomery (Dayton) County, another cemetery of Ferguson hopes, gave the auditor only a few more votes than it did Taft. Even Lausche carried it by less than 4,500 votes, considerably less than his margin there of two years ago.

Industrialized Toledo, Canton and Columbus also gave sizeable margins to Taft despite Ferguson's Labor endorsements, while the senator held his own in Youngstown and Akron.

The rural areas, as expected, gave Taft tremendous majorities, and only Lausche's big-city margins saved him from becoming a Taft victim.

The bipartisan Taft-Lausche victory left the remainder of the state offices hanging in the balance, awaiting the result of final returns. Three Republicans and two Democrats were leading their opponents at the three-quarter mark.

The Democrats were Lt. Gov. George D. Nye and Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney. Republican C. William O'Neill was leading Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy; Republican Roger W. Tracy was pacing Democrat Frank M. Quinn to succeed Ebright as treasurer, and George H. Bender apparently had taken the congress-at-large seat away from Democrat Stephen M. Young.

Harold D. Brown, 21, forfeited $10 bond Tuesday in Circleville mayor's court when failing to answer an accusation of driving an improperly muffled truck.

Brown was arrested on South Court street by Officer Dixie Watters, who said the muffler was "bad."

The North Main Street viaduct spanning the valley of the Little Cuyahoga River in Akron is 2,810 feet long, 72 feet wide, and 135 feet high. It rests on 2,371 sunken piles and accommodates five lanes of traffic. It was completed in 1922 at a cost of $1,227,859.

Solons' Threats Recalled With Tax Levy Slap

A big round "no" from Circleville voters Tuesday on a one-mill tax levy to provide more city government operating funds may force city council to seek other means of raising the money from the taxpayers.

Needing a 60 percent majority to pass, the levy managed to garner only 47 percent of the votes.

Lined up against the tax were 1,618 voters, while only 1,482 indicated a willingness to pay it.

The issue was placed before the people by city council, which in its campaign stated that the need for additional revenue was so great that if the levy failed, it might be necessary to impose a municipal sales tax, or a city income tax.

The lawmakers also warned that if the levy failed to pass, the city might be obliged to cut down on fire and police protection, to curtail street lights.

The solons claimed that the need for more money is a result of the doubling of city government cost over the last 10 years.

The general fund balance last year was $31,000, will be about $20,000 this year.

Columbus Poll Chiefs Check Irregularity

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — Franklin County election board investigators stood by last night while ballot boxes of a south side poll that were opened.

The investigators were to detach the perforated number stubs from ballots dropped in the box.

The "irregularity" of leaving the number stubs on the ballots was discovered by Eugene T. Spetnagel when he voted in the third ward of Precinct J, Columbus.

The number stubs should be torn off the ballot before it is placed in the box. The number could be used, if not detached, to identify the voter. The number of ballots cast is determined by number stubs and checked against the count of the actual ballots.

Spetnagel said he asked the election official to tear off the stub, but met with "firm" resistance. He said he called the election board about the matter and two investigators were sent to the polling place.

The poll workers then were instructed to detach the number stubs.

'Impy' Elbows Big Tammany Hall, Is Elected Mayor Of New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—The boss man of the biggest city in the United States, capital of the United Nations, financial center of the world, today and for the next three years, is a guy everybody knows as "Impy."

By the hundreds of thousands, New York voters knocked the "acting" off the title of dapper, Italian-born Vincent R. Impellitteri, and named him mayor in a popular uprising against Tammany Hall. His plurality was 303,291.

Impy, given the brush by the Democratic machine, swept to victory in an anti-gambling reform wave he spearheaded by naming Thomas F. Murphy, the successful prosecutor of Alger Hiss, as police commissioner.

He literally came in as a man without a party—at least, he was the only candidate of the "Experience Party," a "bullet" organization for the "lone wolf" candidate and his supporters.

"My frank opinion," he said, in his victory speech, "is that I got just as many votes from Republicans as Democrats. I got votes from everybody but Communists."

"And I'm pretty proud of that."

O'Mahoney Seen New Majority Leader Choice

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., is favored today in the impending party contest for the Senate Democratic leadership now held by defeated Scott Lucas of Illinois.

Both Lucas and Senate Majority Whip Francis Myers of Pennsylvania were overwhelmed in the Republican tide recorded in Tuesday's off-year elections.

Lucas will serve out his term as majority leader for the remainder of this Congress, but the Democratic post must be filled anew when the 82nd Congress meets Jan. 3.

A bitter struggle for the job is not out of the question, although the election results may make it less attractive.

Administration officials said that O'Mahoney, a veteran of 17 years in the Senate and a staunch supporter of President Truman, automatically heads the list of possible candidates for the leadership.

But there are other strong potential contenders.

They include Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, (D) N. M., Brien McMahon, (D) Conn., Richard B. Russell, (D) Ga., Ernest W. McFarland, (D) Ariz., and Lyndon Johnson, (D) Texas.

Anderson may have strong support, informed sources say, because of his legislative record through three House terms, his experience as secretary of agriculture in the Truman cabinet, and his campaign leadership.

Gambler 'Wins' 5-To-1 Shot

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Gambler Joseph B. Fauver was on the wrong end of a five-to-one deal but he won, anyway.

Fauver, who once pleaded guilty to a gambling charge, served as target for his wife's pistol practice and suffered a minor wound in the foot. The bullet that hit his foot was the only one of five rounds police said Mrs. Fauver fired.

She was held under $500 bond on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

New Type Wheat Harvest Plan Is Bared Here

A new sort of wheat farming has been introduced in Pickaway County.

For reaping his crops the "farmer" equips himself only with a truck, chisel and a hammer. And works at night.

County authorities reported Wednesday that the new system was used to good advantage Monday at the new government granaries at Route 56 and Darbyville Pike.

Deputies Walter Richards and Carl Radcliff, who investigated the scene Tuesday, said the "farmer" worked it like this:

The man backed his truck up close to one of the corrugated steel bins, hammered out a hole with a chisel and let the grain tumble into his truck.

Dewey Downs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration estimated the thief made off with nearly 200 bushels of wheat by using the technique. Downs estimated the loss of wheat at more than $400.

County Girls' Steer Brings Top Money

Two Madison Township 4-H Club girls have a right to feel proud.

They are Jonie and Rosalie Cline, 10 and 11 years old respectively, whose choice 4-H Club steer recently brought top money during a junior market day sale in Columbus.

Their steer was auctioned off during the special youngster's exposition for 45½ cents per pound, the best price of the day.

Unlike other livestock events in which stock is entered by youngsters, the junior market day stock is not formally judged but is placed in the auction ring, where the watchful eyes of the buyers pick out the choicest grades.

The proud youngsters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Cline, are members of the Madison Livewires 4-H Club. The steer which was sold was their project this year.

Auto Title Tally Drops

A drop was noted in the number of auto titles issued in Pickaway County clerk of courts office in October.

Clerk A. L. Wilder reported that 553 titles were issued last month, compared to 719 for September.

Mortgage lien notations in October totaled 202, in September, 286. Cancellations totaled 192 last month, 229 in September.

Sixty-five new cars and 15 new trucks were purchased in October, while the month before 79 new cars, 23 new trucks and two new buses were bought.

Second Woman's Body Taken From River

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—The identity of a mutilated woman's body recovered from the Ohio river near Cincinnati remained a mystery today while authorities attempted to confirm the identification of another woman's body found in the river less than 24 hours before.

The first woman, tentatively identified as Nora Jean Isaacs, a 19-year-old Covington, Ky., girl who had been reported missing, was bound with wire and was weighted with five pieces of metal.

Middleton Gets Write-In Edge In Voting Here

A write-in candidate favored by the Republican Party scored a decisive edge in Pickaway County's balloting for an Ohio supreme court judgeship Tuesday.

He was Henry Middleton, applicant for the job of unexpired term in the court to end Dec. 31, 1954. He got 1000 votes.

However, during the early polling, it was anyone's race. Among others whose names were written on the new-type ballots were Judge William D. Radcliff of Pickaway County common pleas court and County Prosecutor Guy Cline.

Middleton's nearest opponent in the contest was Howard

WIN $350.00

Plus An Extra $50.00 IF YOU ARE PROMPT AND WIN FIRST PRIZE!

Here is a brand new, fascinating contest of skill which gives you the opportunity to win $350.00 in cash plus an extra $50.00 for promptness. $350.00 to the first prize winner and there is nothing for you to buy and nothing to sell. There is no obligation whatsoever on your part. There are no tricks or illusions. You merely add all of the numbers shown within the outline drawing of the speedometer in this new 1950 automobile.

HOW MANY MILES ON THIS SPEEDOMETER?

COUNT THE MILES At the right is an outline drawing of an automobile speedometer. How many miles has this new 1950 automobile traveled? See if you can add all of the numbers shown within the outline drawing. Each number is complete in itself. The total of all the numbers represents the number of miles. The numbers range from 2 to 9. Add each number separately as if one stood above another in a single column. When you have added these numbers, rush your answer right away along with your name and address.

RULES 1. The drawing of the automobile speedometer is an outline drawing and is filled with numbers. Get busy right away. Add all of the numbers within the drawing to find how many miles the automobile has traveled. Send your answer right away. Each number is complete in itself. Numbers range from 2 to 9. There are no ones or zeros in the drawing. The tops of the 6's are curved and open. The bottoms of the 9's are straight—no numbers are upside down. Thus you can easily tell exactly what each number is.

2. This puzzle requires patience and skill, and remember each number stands alone and must be added separately. For example, 2, 3, 5 and 9 are to be counted 2 plus 3 plus 5 plus 9, total 19, and is not two thousand three hundred and fifty-nine. In other words simply add each number as if one stood above the other in a single column. That's all there is to it, but like a good many puzzles, it is not as easy as it looks.

3. This puzzle requires patience, skill and accuracy. If you have the patience to try it, rush your answer right away and you may ultimately win $350.00 in cash plus an extra $50.00 if you are prompt. The thing to do right now is to get your pencil and paper and start immediately. Then rush your answer at once.

4. This is a large contest covering the Continental United States and Canada, ties are anticipated and the winners will be determined by the best answers to a tie-breaker puzzle or puzzles of mathematical skill sent to us in duplicate. In the tie-breaker puzzle or puzzles, it will be necessary to add a certain number of figures following a crossword-like path to determine the largest total. In the event additional tie-breakers will contain sixty numbers. In the event additional tie-breakers are necessary, which is likely, the prize will be longer and more difficult. On tie-breakers one, two and three (if we have to use them) the tied contestants will be allowed 10 days from the date five (if used) will be sent by registered mail and 48 hours will be allowed for solution. Receipt of tie-breaker and postmark on return will determine the time used by contestants. Litigation of the right and wrong way to work tie-breakers will accompany each tie-breaker puzzle. In case there are still ties after the fifth tie-breaker puzzle for the first prize or prize prizes, duplicate prizes will be paid. Decision of the judges is final.

5. As no time in this contest of skill will be there by any shyness, singles or essays to write. This contest is confined only to persons living in the Continental United States and Canada. No members of the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, members of their families or members of the armed forces are eligible to participate.

6. Answer in order to be eligible to win must be postmarked on or before midnight, December 12, 1950. If you are declared the first-prize winner, in order to win the $50.00 extra for promptness your answer must be postmarked on or before midnight of the date shown in the box below. So, hurry, send your answer today.

BE PROMPT. In order to be eligible for the $50.00 extra for promptness if you are the first-prize winner, your answer must be postmarked on or before
NOVEMBER 18, 1950

CAN YOU USE $400.00 RIGHT NOW?

If you could use this big cash prize and probably have a lot of fun at the same time, then rush your answer to us quick. That's the first step toward winning in this prize contest. Then if you are the cash provided you have been prompt in sending in your solution. There is a big second prize of $100.00, a third prize of $50.00, a fourth prize of $25.00 and a fifth prize of $10.00. No matter whether it's $400.00 or $10.00 the winners will be paid real cash money. Remember, there is nothing to buy and nothing to sell.

SEND NO MONEY BUT RUSH ANSWER NOW TO QUALIFY FOR PROMPTNESS PRIZE

Do not send any money whatever with your answer to this puzzle. There is no obligation on your part but, remember, your answer must be postmarked on or before midnight, December 12, 1950 which is the closing date. It is important to hurry, send your answer immediately—right away. Remember, you are to send no money in this contest. Rush your answer to us now. If you are the first prize winner in this contest, but when your answer is received you will be given the opportunity, if you desire, to enter a big contest where you may win up to $3,500.00 in cash. Full details will be sent to you when your answer is received. The big contest will be similar to this announcement contest but will be more difficult, and in the big contest, a donation of not less than $3 will be required from all who enter. Donations will be made to the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, established in 1946 as a non-profit organization under the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia to make possible a Service Memorial to help perpetuate the ideals and teachings of Booker T. Washington. It is not necessary that you enter the larger contest in order to win the $400.00 prize in this contest. The thing for you to do right now is to rush your answer to the puzzle. Send no money. Hurry, be sure to mail your answer on or before the promptness date shown at the left. Hurry, write your answer and mail it right away to—

Ebright Takes 66 Counties, But Still Loses

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — Don H. Ebright carried 66 of the 88 Ohio counties—but lost the election to Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The six-term Republican state treasurer just couldn't come through in the big ones. The 22 counties Lausche captured included Cuyahoga, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lorain, Lucas, Mahoning, Summit, Montgomery and Trumbull.

Robert A. Taft, in overwhelming Democrat State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to retain his Senate seat, captured 83 of the 88 counties, losing only Jefferson, Lawrence, Pike, Summit and Belmont. Taft even captured Cuyahoga County, normally a Democrat stronghold.

A sidelight was the fact that Ferguson did win Belmont and Lawrence Counties while Lausche

Dr. Adkins' Friend Dies

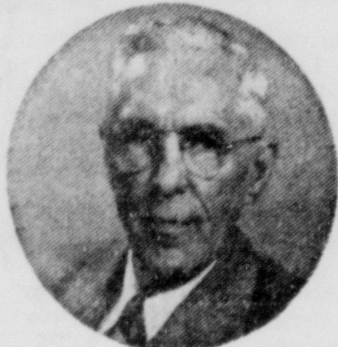

Dr. Dorothy Adkins, native of Circleville, has been called to Ohio by the death of a professor friend.

Funeral services are to be held at 10 a. m. Thursday for Dr. George McClellan, 42, who died as the result of a fall in Los Angeles. He had been a professor in UCLA, was known in Circleville following visits here.

Dr. Adkins, psychology professor in the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C., is returning to Ohio by airliner to attend the funeral services.

Dr. McClellan called Columbus "home" although he had no immediate survivors.

che didn't. The governor has been under fire within his own party in the two counties because of his anti-gambling crusade in Lawrence County and the liquor department's raids on fraternal organizations in Belmont.

No wonder the Heaton Store is proud of him. No wonder your next door neighbor says "Buy your piano from Otto Zimpfer" at the old reliable

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

Here's a boy who is really frank. His problem is that he's a little guy, not the least bit handsome and says he's "no good at sports." So how can he ever hope to be popular enough in school (he's a freshman now) to have fun and dates?

He feels "inferior," he tells me, because he's not big enough for sports, and when he went to dancing school he was always one of the last boys chosen when it was "ladies choice."

This keeps his self-confidence down to zero and he's pretty sure right now that high school will be four dreary years of "all work and no play."

But it "ain't necessarily so." Some of the best golfers aren't tall. A world champion table tennis player weighed only about 130 pounds. Some short boys are whizzes on the dance floor with girls their size. So what's all the gloom about?

Choose sports that don't require height and weight — golf, tennis, table tennis, swimming, bowling, etc. Brush up on dancing and get acquainted with a girl about your height; she'd love to go to school dances with you, so why miss part of high school fun?

You don't have to weigh in to play bridge and canasta... or to have Friday night movie dates, double or single. There's room for you in school organizations such as the band, glee, dramatic, science or camera club.

Avoid trying to win attention by showing off, wise-cracking or by "acting big" in any way. Scale your sports to your size and there's plenty of fun ahead for you!

For help with personal problems, write to Elinor Williams at this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

The 47-story American Insurance Union Building, now the Leveque-Lincoln Tower, was completed in Columbus in 1927 at a cost of $8 million.

ANOTHER BRIGHT PAGE

NOW THAT Korea is becoming more quiet, the United States Far East Air Force has an opportunity to look over the score sheet, to discover it has completed a tremendous task, and has written another bright page in the history of American aviation.

Since June 26, the day after the invasion of South Korea, the force has flown more than 50,000 individual combat missions, more than half of which were made by fighter planes. Bombers and transports accounted for the remainder.

During the 120 days of the campaign more than 35,000 tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy; more than 27,000,000 rounds of .50 caliber ammunition were fired; 75,000 rockets were fired and 850,000 gallons of gasoline fire bombs were dropped.

In addition 20,000 medical patients were evacuated. It is not surprising the invaders were all but blasted from the earth, and forced to retreat in considerable disorder.

The Air Force saved the day in Korea, holding and hindering the enemy while ground and naval forces were being rushed to the scene. In World War II, both in Japan and Europe, U. S. bombers made great contributions to victory. Planes may not win a war, but they can do a bangup job of fixing it for the other services to move in.

NOT ENOUGH SEATS

AMONG the buildings in London which the Luftwaffe demolished a decade ago, one of the most ancient was not the House of Commons, which dated from no later than 1840-50. That was modern as buildings in Great Britain go.

The wrecked House of Commons was but part of that massive group of Gothic structures, rising on the banks of the Thames, known as the Houses of Parliament. Here, in this vast concurrence of brick and stone, were Lords and Commons, members' offices, dining rooms, libraries, a residence for the Speaker, and much besides that went into the vast British ritual of government.

Wrecked and burned out under a rain of German bombs, the House of Commons has been rebuilt and is now to be opened for formal business. Craftsmanship as to stone and woodwork is in the finest British hand tradition. The King, who has not been permitted to enter the House of Commons since the time of Charles I, was given a sneak preview.

There is a Churchill arch of rubble, set amid smooth stone; there are enlarged press and public galleries; there is air conditioning and amplification. But the House of Commons itself remains small enough for conversation, its original size.

How British, to rebuild a room with 437 seats for 625 members!

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Soviet Russia still continues an active and intense campaign for "peace." In the Aesopian language of Marxism, peace means something very different from anything we understand by that noble word.

To us, peace can only mean a world without war, without the fear of imminent war, without devoting most of swollen budgets to war purposes. To us; war can bring no benefits. The last two wars in which we have engaged have brought to our people an altered economic and political system and a degradation of public morals.

To Russia, peace means something altogether different. To them, it means the unification of the world, by war or revolution or other means, into a Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics, under the Marx-Leninist philosophy presided over by the motherland, Russia.

Since 1917, Russia has been moving steadily in one direction to achieve this goal. In every country, there are Marxists who sincerely believe that the monolithic peace described above is a proper cause for lifelong devotion. If we question their sincerity, we misunderstand their conduct and the intensity of their affiliation. Also, we underestimate the strength of their effort.

That is the essential error which the American government has been making since 1933, when we resumed relations with Russia. Roosevelt, Truman, Harriman, Byrnes, Acheson—the list is long and includes Republicans and non-party liberals as well as Democrats—assumed that Russia was merely a nation, playing politics as we play it and that deals and compromises could be made, which, while they lasted, served their purposes.

This view was erroneous because it failed to take into account that in the Marxian assumptions, Russia was not more than one country in a world to be conquered; that the ultimate objective must be and is one government for the entire world. When Wendell Willkie advocated one world, he used a phrase that sounded good to a generation weary of war. He did not realize that what the Russians meant by one world was a Marxist world, achieved by force.

And so, when Mr. Truman made his off-the-cuff remarks about a Red herring, he did not grasp that the ultimate conquest of the United States by Marxism is not only an objective but has been more than 30 years in the making.

It was largely as part of that objective that when the Harold Ware group was organized in 1934 to infiltrate high offices in government, the training ground was the AAA and the Nye committee, and then the Communists concentrated in three areas: the State Department, the Treasury and the CIO.

In the State Department and the Treasury, these Communists devoted themselves largely to the China problem. Their object was to eliminate the Nationalist government of China and to substitute for it Soviet China, headed by Russian-trained Chinese Communists.

Within the United States, they devoted themselves to giving Chiang Kai-shek a bad name, particularly as the head of a corrupt clique incapable of action. They termed the Chinese Communists "Agrarian reformers."

At any rate, they succeeded in turning American opinion away from Chiang in spite of his heroic resistance to Communism.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"TELL ME about Michael," Fleming asked Liza as they drove along.

"I like him, Robert, mainly I suppose because George did. But I don't think he'll ever amount to anything. He's terribly mixed up. 'You think so?' asked Fleming, in surprise. 'He always seemed to have uncommon poise, to me, coupled with drive. His laziness is assumed, you know; he is really inordinately ambitious. Also, he appears to know where he is going.'"

"Professionally, perhaps," admitted Liza, "I wouldn't know about that. I was thinking of his attitude toward women."

He said, amused, "I wouldn't say he was too mixed up there. From what I have heard he gets around a good deal, plays the field, makes a swift retreat when necessary."

"That's where he's mixed up. He should permit the capture—"

said Liza—"and the more I talk to members of your sex the more startled I am by their enormous conceit—and settle down with some nice, wholesome girl, one with common sense and intelligence."

"Sounds horrible, a fate worse than death."

"You talk like Michael. Seriously, he needs balance and responsibility. Yes, even a ranch-type house on the Island, with a deep freeze."

"Come again?"

"Just symbols. When the apartment is in order, and I have attended to more urgent matters, I must look around and find such a girl for him."

"He'll take off for China."

"It won't do him any good," said Liza serenely. "Tell me, is anyone else to be at the Goddards? Her note didn't say."

"Hiram Mason," Fleming grinned somewhat wryly. "He was asked, I fear, for you."

"Why fear?"

"This time it's my vanity that stands revealed. I escort you," he reminded her, "but I presume that the Goddards do not consider me, in relation to you, in anything but an avuncular light."

She put her hand on his arm. "Never mind, Robert, you know that I don't particularly like Hiram Mason," she said.

He thought, But she likes me, is even fond of me. He had an adventurous vision of retirement, of travel, and not alone. He shook his head. Lightning does not strike twice. Nor should Liza make the same mistake twice. He corrected that in his thoughts.

The first time, it was not a mistake; the second time, it would be. The trouble was, he thought irritably, he didn't feel old with Liza. George hadn't. Nor had Liza thought of George as old. She might not think that George's good friend, Robert Fleming, was old. She was conditioned to men greatly her senior. He had noticed often since her arrival in town how she turned to, confided in, and depended upon him. Almost as if he—

He shook himself and the car swerved.

"What are you thinking, is something wrong?" asked Liza solicitously.

"Nothing, except that you are a most charming companion," he replied.

He was hatless, his thick white hair bare to the sun. Liza slid her eyes round to him and he turned to smile at her. She thought, Oh dear! She thought, I must do something about it.

What, she didn't know; but it would come to her, in due time.

The Goddards were nice people; they had a nice house, set in a plentitude of fields, wall checkered, and orchards. Mrs. Goddard was nearly sixty, her husband somewhat older and a retired industrialist. They had their quota of children and grandchildren, none present this fine May weekend, with the trees like green flames, the rose blossoms, and the pure, blue sky.

Hiram had arrived before them and was voluble with reproach.

"You might have asked me to drive up," he told Fleming.

The doctor regarded him unremorsefully. "Thought you'd drive yourself," he answered.

"I came by train, I haven't taken my car out yet, as a matter of fact. Mrs. Lennox is looking extremely well," he added.

"Liza always looks well. She's as healthy as any woman has a right to be," said Fleming, juggling the ice in his drink and turning from Hiram to talk vegetables.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The last we saw of our candidate he was headed for the river with a big rope around his neck. That's no way to catch trout.

He was almost elected, until somebody mentioned he was a self-made man. His district was looking for a machine product.

At six o'clock, he said: "I have the greatest confidence in the sanity of the people." At nine o'clock he said: "Thank goodness for a few sane people." At midnight he said: "Everybody's nuts!"

Looking back over his campaign it's obvious what happened. . . he forgot to tell the people what they wanted to hear.

It is very important to tell people what they want to be told and not so important to tell them what they should be told. That can be unpleasant.

Actually our boy didn't stand a chance. . . nobody even took a shot at him.

Try, Stop Me

Little Wendy was allowed to stay up fifteen minutes beyond her usual bedtime to finish a story of the Pilgrims. One of the illustrations showed the Pilgrims fighting Indians with their old-fashioned muskets. As she climbed into her pajamas, Wendy reported, "The Pilgrims shot turkeys and Indians with their claretets."

Joe Frisco, the stuttering comic, was going through one of his lean periods, and owed five weeks' back rent on his room in Palm Springs. Suddenly he spied the hotel manager and called, "C-c-come on over to the b-b-b-bar and let me buy you a d-d-drink." Nothing doing, said the manager. "I can't afford it."

Two comedians discovered that they were using the same jokes in their monologues and almost came to blows over it in Lindy's Restaurant. "I had it first," screamed Joe. "G'wan," jeered Blow. "I read it in a Broadway column yesterday. 'So did I,'" admitted Joe, "but I read it in the First Edition!"

'Selective' Price Control | West German Armed Force System Called Unworkable | Despite French Opposition?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Government officials privately have just about written off the idea of "selective" price controls.

One key stabilization executive said, "Once we start imposing controls, they're going to snowball over the entire economy."

This official cited steel as an example of the snowballing process. If steel production is placed under ceilings, then controls will have to be slapped on steel's chief ingredients—iron ore and coal.

If the government regulates coal prices, there will be an immediate demand for curbing the costs of other fuels.

In addition, price controls must be accompanied by wage ceilings in the industry controlled. Once one group of workers' wages are frozen the freeze will have to be extended to other industries to avoid dislocation of the nation's manpower.

So government experts have concluded there is no such thing as "selective" or partial controls. It's all or nothing.

● EUROPEAN DEFENSE—Military experts in Washington expect West German armed forces to be in uniform early next year despite stubborn French opposition.

Informed opinion is that the Germans will be organized in units similar to the regimental combat teams the United States employed so successfully in World War II and lately in Korea.

Previously the Pentagon wanted to integrate German units of division size into the European defense force but probably will approve the smaller combat-team unit to win French support.

Best estimates are that about 25,000 thoroughly screened Germans, many of them Wehrmacht veterans but none with pronounced Nazi characteristics, will be recruited and trained as "shock troops."

The Germans probably will not be permitted to have any officers higher in rank than colonel and the German units will be trained under close supervision of United States officers.

● WRONG TARGET—The government, in the person of Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan, got a lot of criticism over the program to have women and girls make United Nations flags for display on UN day, but the barrage was misdirected.

Actually, the project did not originate with the government. It was conceived by the National Grange, private United States farm organization, and subsequently endorsed by the other three major American farm groups.

The Agriculture department did ultimately give the program its blessing and get behind it—and federal officials went ahead with the scheme despite the "beefs" of the Daughters of the American Revolution and some veterans groups.

Washington officialdom regards the criticism as a new low in pettiness at a time when American soldiers are fighting and dying in Korea under the UN flag and supreme direction of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as UN commander.

● POLITICAL SWITCH—Democrats still hope to capture New Hampshire, despite the ruling of that state's ballot law commission eliminating Wesley Powell as an independent candidate.

Powell failed by a narrow margin to win the GOP senatorial nomination from incumbent Senator Charles W. Tobey. When he then decided to run as an independent, Democrats thought they were in—that Powell and Tobey would split the Republican vote and assure the election of Democrat Emmet J. Kelley.

The ballot commission spiked this possibility, but Democrats still believe the bitterness of the Powell-Tobey fight may have injured the GOP beyond repair before Nov. 7.

They recall that Tobey was elected to his present term by only 4,000 votes—a very slim margin for a New England Republican.

Fashion Flash

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Ladies, to be modish, must be mannish next Spring.

The big-name designers generally agreed today that the newest 1951 silhouette will be: Straight again, simple again, and definitely more man-tailored than this winter's slim 'n' graceful line.

The return to the mannish means a strong return of the one-button suit—a suit that buttons at the waistline and has deep, low-notched lapels. Under such tailored jackets, the popular blouse will be the severe, plain round-necked and collarless style.

Most decoration on these new Spring suits will appear at the neckline, where jacket pleurms will be stiffened, or decorated with braid or hemline cuffs or buttons.

Once again, it'll be sort of a man's world!

Lausche Says 'No Victory' Before Service

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Governor Lausche stated following his reelection today that "there will have been no victory for anyone" unless in the next two years governmental service is further developed for the betterment of the people.

He said such service must "strengthen our state and nation, remove injustices" and "develop programs within our constitutional limitations" for the public good.

To Don H. Ebricht, the unsuccessful Republican gubernatorial candidate, he said:

"I express my regret that both of us were unable to receive a majority of the votes. For the decency of the campaign which he conducted there can be no question that the people of Ohio and I are grateful," Lausche added.

"Whether victory has come is not determined by the fact that I received more votes than Mr. Ebricht; that will only be determined when my service as governor is complete, at which time victory or defeat will be reflected by the quality of governmental service that has been given.

"The people have expressed their judgment, not intending that their will shall be a prey to be avenged, but that through the choice that has been made we will have better government."

Civil War Vet Votes 85th Time

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 8.—One hundred and nine-year-old James A. Hard, said to be the nation's oldest living Civil War veteran, voted yesterday for the 85th time.

He said with a twinkle that "I voted straight Republican."

Hard has missed voting only once since he cast his first ballot for Abraham Lincoln in Nashville, Tenn., in 1864. At that time, Hard was a soldier.

Killinger has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. His trial is expected to take at least five days. The youth confessed that he killed Mast Oct. 5 so that Max Amerman, 27, who admitted plotting the slaying, could woo Mast's widow, Randi, 24.

An unofficial tabulation of all but two of the district's 295 precincts gave Democrat Incumbent James G. Polk of Hillsboro 40,065, and Republican Edward O. McGowan of Portsmouth 38,422.

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

Yesterday, at one of those cocktail parties where only pedigreed olives are used in the Martinis, I met a movie actress who used to dance in one of my chorus lines back in the 1930s. She was sporting a square-cut that looked like the searchlight on the old Albany night boat.

"Glad you're doing so well," I said. "You've really gone places since the days when you made a fast forty a week."

"Have I changed much?" she asked, lighting a gold-tipped cigarette.

"Well, for one thing," I said, "you never used to smoke buck-a-pack ciggies."

"You mean these Sobranies?" said the actress. "Matter of fact, I started smoking them while I was working at your club. One of your customers introduced me to them."

"Boy friend?"

"YES, IF A MAN in his 50s can be called a boy. Remember Big Joel?"

"The oil fella?"

"That's the one," said the star. "Know something? I probably would be married to him today if not for these Sobranies."

"Tell me about it," I prodded. "Well, it's not much of a story," said the actress. "One night Big Joel threw a party at the Central Park Casino for a bunch of his pals—Jimmy Walker, Billy Seeman, Jules Glaenzer and that crowd. And it was quite a shindig—guinea hen under glass, buckets of champagne and gold-tipped Sobranies on every table. I was one of the girls invited—but what I didn't know until later was that Joel intended to surprise me and announce our engagement that night."

"Were you stuck on the big lug?"

"Not particularly," said the star, "but he was a nice enough fella and had he made the announcement I don't doubt but that I would have gone along with it."

"What stopped him?"

"It was one of those things," said the actress. "A little after midnight, when I came back to my table after a dance, I found my pocketbook was missing. I started to look for it, but Big Joel told me to relax and handed me a hundred bucks. I thanked him but kept right on looking, and when he asked me why I was so worried about the pocketbook I told him there was three hundred dollars in it."

"I had hardly gotten the words out of my mouth when the woman who worked 'in the ladies' room came up and handed me my purse—said she found it under the make-up table."

"BIG JOEL LOOKED at me

and grinned kind of funny. 'It ain't that I don't trust you, honey,' he said, 'but a man wants to be awfully sure about the lady he's going to make his wife. Forgive me, but—would you mind opening that bag and showing me the three hundred?'

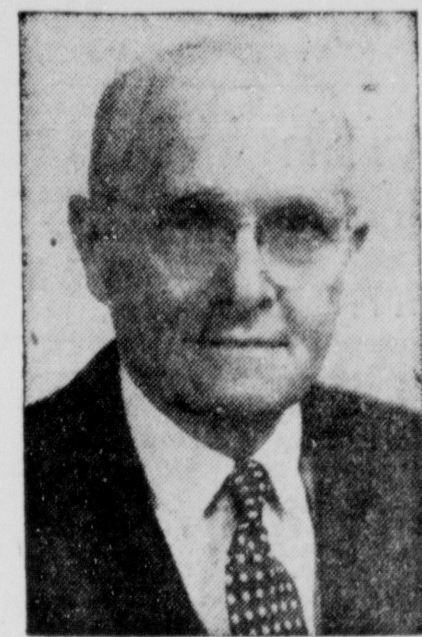

"Naturally I did no such thing. I picked up my bag, gave him one of those 'how-dare-you' looks and walked straight out of the room."

"In other words," I small-joked, "Big Joel caught you with your purse down."

"Nothing of the sort," said the movie star. "Matter of fact, I had been paid off that afternoon for a series of modeling jobs and had closer to four hundred than three in my bag."

"Then why didn't you open it?"

"How could I?" said the actress. "He'd have seen the ten packs of Sobranie Gold-Tips I had swiped off the tables."

Famed 'Oscar' Is Dead At 84

NEW PALTZ, N. Y., Nov. 8—The world's most famous caterer Oscar of the Waldorf—died at his country home in here Monday at the age of 84.
Death came unexpectedly to the great host whose real name was Oscar Tschirky, but who was known as "Oscar" to kings and queens, Presidents, diplomats, leaders of business, arts and society and the world at large.
He suffered a heart attack

while playing checkers with his son, August, in the quiet of his country home far removed from the clatter of society to which he had contributed for over 60 years. Fifty-four of Ohio's counties each have more than 2,000 employed in manufacturing.

Something New For Faster Growth of Pigs!

Announcing addition of A.P.F. Supplement with antibiotic activity!

to

Master Mix Sow and Pig Concentrate with Methio-Vite
Master Mix Pig Starter with Methio-Vite
Master Mix 35% Hog Concentrate

What is an Antibiotic?

It is a compound formed by living organisms through special fermentation that prevents growth of other living organisms.

What Will Antibiotic Activity Do?

FOR GROWING PIGS

It will help you get faster growth on pigs from weaning time to market weight. The antibiotic activity helps to keep your pigs in a healthier condition, enabling them to eat more and grow faster.

Experiment station research at Illinois, Purdue, Michigan, Iowa, and Florida has shown that growing pigs made 10% to 20% faster gains when antibiotic activity was added to a completely balanced ration.

FOR SOWS

Antibiotic activity added to a completely balanced ration for bred sows will have a beneficial effect during the gestation and lactation periods. While the results have not been as outstanding as in growing pigs, antibiotic activity is beneficial in controlling harmful organisms.

From McMillen Feed Research

McMillen Feed Mills has added an A.P.F. supplement with antibiotic activity to Sow and Pig Concentrate with Methio-Vite, 35% Hog Concentrate, and Pig Starter with Methio-Vite.

This antibiotic activity does not add to the nutritional value of Master Mix Feeds, but through its ability to combat many harmful organisms, will help to keep the pigs and sows in healthier condition.

This new A.P.F. supplement does not replace Methio-Vite. Experiments conducted by McMillen Feed Research revealed that sows fed a well balanced ration containing Methio-Vite and this new supplement, farrowed 16% more live pigs and weaned 28% more pigs than sows fed the same ration containing the antibiotic activity, but without Methio-Vite.

New uses for this antibiotic activity may develop. When they are determined and proven, we will report to you about them.

ASHVILLE TILT CANCELED

CHS Cagers Have Rugged 19-Game Schedule Ahead

Circleville high school's 1950-51 basketball team has a schedule of 19 games facing it this season—and it's a tough one.

Tiger Coach Dick West, who issued his first call to practice Monday, said this year's card contains seven brand new opponents.

From the fans who have viewed the new card comes a moan: "What's West trying to do to us?"

But the coach has things well in hand, apparently, as he plans for the future of his cage team. The new schedule contains the names of Columbus North, Aquinas and Columbus Central, along with Ironton, Portsmouth, Zanesville and Hamilton Township.

FOR YEARS, Circleville has met lesser local teams during the season only to flub out when district "A" tournament time rolls around.

"The boys just haven't been used to the kind of ball they get in the tournament," West said. "This year they will meet some of the top district teams during the season and will be better prepared for the big boys."

One thing is missing from this year's card which will make some local fans glad, some sad.

That is the absence of Ashville's Bronco "B" basketball team, traditional foe of the former Tiger combines.

West explained that with the new, tougher schedule there just isn't room to fit in a match against the Ashville team.

Local fans who have attached a sentiment to the annual clash between the two neighboring teams are saddened by the absence.

On the other hand, fans who have seen mighty CHS teams trampled by the smaller Ashville school in the past are in favor of the change.

"We (Circleville) have nothing to gain by playing the little school," say they. "If we win, we're bullies. If we lose, we're worthless."

ANOTHER innovation has been added to this season's schedule.

Coach West has carded two games during Christmas for his cagers involving a two-day road trip to the Ohio River.

The Tigers are slated to meet Ironton Dec. 28, stay overnight along the river and meet Portsmouth Dec. 29.

Circleville will have only four weeks of practice now before it opens its season Dec. 1 against the Chillicothe Cavaliers, West's Alma mater.

Last year, Circleville was the only team capable of handling the Cavaliers a double drubbing.

West added that his team's game against Hamilton Township is only tentative so far, pending confirmation by the Hamilton coach.

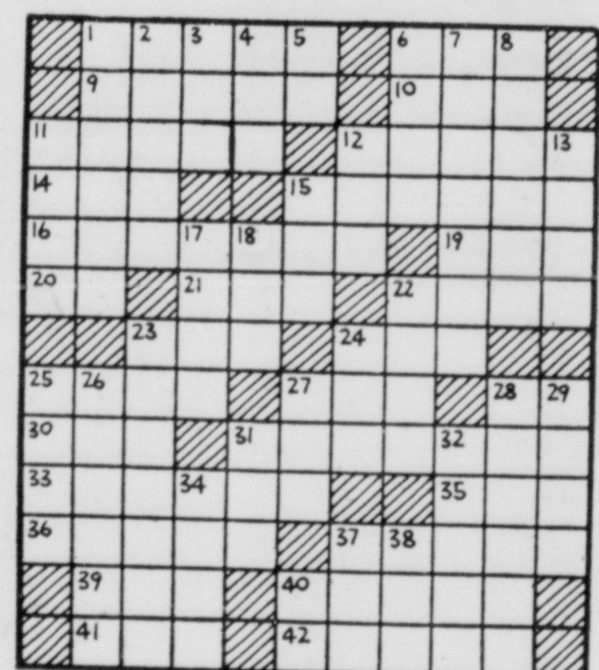

Complete schedule of the 1950-51 Tiger season follows:

- Dec. 1—at Chillicothe.
- Dec. 5—Columbus Aquinas.
- Dec. 8—Columbus North.
- Dec. 15—Washington C. H.
- Dec. 19—at Westerville.
- Dec. 22—Lancaster.
- Dec. 26—at Ironton.
- Dec. 29—at Portsmouth.

- Jan. 12—at Wilmington.
- Jan. 20—at Zanesville.
- Jan. 26—Wilmington.
- Jan. 30—Chillicothe.
- Feb. 2—at Washington C. H.
- Feb. 9—at Greenfield.
- Feb. 16—at Hamilton Township.
- Feb. 20—at Columbus Central.
- Feb. 23—at Hillsboro.

Massillon '11' May Grab State Title This Week

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — The Massillon Tigers have the opportunity this week to sew up the 1950 Ohio mythical high school championship.

The Tigers, who have been impressive in winning eight straight games, take on the Barberton Magics, 1947 state champions and the only other high-ranking eleven still unbeaten this year.

If Massillon gets by Barberton, only Canton McKinley stands between Chuck Mather's boys and a season of victories over the toughest elevens in the state. Massillon warmed up for this week's game with a 39 to 0 win over Toledo Waite while Barberton walked over Akron St. Vincent, 36 to 6.

Hamilton's Big Blue, upset from top-ranking elevens by Toledo Libbey last week, takes on Dayton Fairview this week in preparation for the annual Butler County feature with Middletown's Middies. The 13-6 defeat by Libbey was the first blot on Hamilton's record this year.

Upper Arlington, the Columbus suburban point-a-minute team, meets neighboring Grandview in another one of those traditional affairs but the Doug Goodsell-sparked eleven should have no difficulty. Goodsell, an All-Ohio candidate who has been scouted personally by Ohio State Head Coach Wes Fesler, has scored 181 points this year. Against Columbus St. Marys last week, he accounted for five touchdowns and one extra point.

This week's action winds up the season for a goodly share of the state's schoolboy elevens.

Wisconsin, Illinois Spies Irked By Ohio State's Grid Powerhouse

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 — There were a lot of dissatisfied football fans in town after the Ohio State special pulled out for Columbus, but nobody knew exactly why.

After all, the Buckeyes had shown a highly versatile attack in beating a plausible Northwestern team, 32 to 0, last Saturday. It was a juggernaut without challenge that has rolled to an unprecedented total of 163 points (averaging 54 1-3) for its last three Big Ten games.

What they hadn't seen, however, was the point that pestered the espionage set from Wisconsin and Illinois.

All they knew was that the Buckeyes were running at half-throttle for 56 out of a possible 60 minutes and still were able to beat the Wildcats. It had been much the same in the two preceding week ends.

Against Minnesota, the Buckeyes had attempted to keep the tota decient but just couldn't stop short of 48-0. Against Iowa, they finally wound up with 83 points.

Against Northwestern, they won, to every practical purpose, in the first 3:44 minutes of the game. Anything after that was strictly for the archives, leading many an objective witness to conjectures instead of conclusions.

Irish Combine Over The Hump?

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8—The Cleveland Indians will televise their 77 home games again next season.

Club President Ellis Ryan said he is convinced that TV hasn't seriously harmed attendance so far. The Tribe is drawing up a 1951 contract with a local brewing firm, sponsor of the telecasts in 1949.

Terms of the new one year contract were not revealed. Some of the Indians' road games may also be telecast, Ryan indicated.

Another brewing company holds both AM and FM radio rights and that contract has two more years to run.

Jack Graney and Jimmy Dudley handled the TV and radio play by play accounts, but no decision has been made on the 1951 setup.

WHAT ELSE can one do but guess about a team that right after the first whistle Saturday scored twice, covering 144 yards and in the process used only one real play from scrimmage? Or a team which, on the run of the season, scores 237 total points to 74 for the combined opposition; yet the disparity in total yardage is only a ratio of four yards to three? Or for that matter, a team which restricts Southern Methodist's running to minus-7 for the day, but uses the ball game, 32-27?

There were times last Saturday when Vic Janowicz seemed to be the entire attack, then suddenly the Buckeyes were without him and functioned even better.

Without him, Ohio State drove to its last touchdown with a show of gusto and talent that made Tony Curcillo, Walt Klevay and Chuck Gandee look like All-Americans in the making.

That would suggest that Ohio State can be equally good without Janowicz, which is mildly incredible.

New Ticket Plan Booked

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 — Bob Ries, assistant ticket director of Ohio State university, has announced a new plan of distribution of basketball tickets for the team's 11 home games.

Students will get a choice of four out of 11 games instead of the three they got last year. The claiming period begins 12 days before each home game and lasts for six days. After that, all remaining tickets will be sold to the general public.

Students may see more than the four allotted games by purchasing $1 and $1.50 reserved seats. There will also be 300 non-reserved seats for students selling for 50 cents.

Don Black Again In Hospital

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 — Don Black, former Cleveland Indians' pitcher who nearly died of a cerebral hemorrhage in 1948, was reported in fairly good condition in Charity hospital today after he collapsed in downtown Cleveland.

Dr. Spencer Braden, noted brain surgeon who performed an operation on Black after he was stricken during a game in the stadium, said that the illness was in no way related to the injury he suffered in 1948.

Swine Growers Are Urged Work For Healthier Pigs

Hog farmers in Pickaway County this week were being urged to join swine growers all over the nation in a concerted effort to reduce heavy losses of baby pigs.

Dr. Eddie Hedges, Circleville veterinarian, said that the American Veterinary Medical Association has issued a special appeal for stronger action to curb pig losses.

He reported that the AVMA says that efforts should be directed toward getting more pigs per litter and toward saving more of those that are farrowed. When litters are small or when death losses run higher than 15 or 20 percent, the trouble usually can be traced to faulty management practices and failure to act fast enough when infectious diseases strike.

New Dependency Ruling Noted

Parents of deceased World War II prisoners of war no longer need prove dependency to receive benefits.

Pickaway County Service Officer James P. Shea said Wednesday that a new bill recently approved does away with the necessity of proving dependency.

Shea said the parents are eligible for benefits if the person died in prisoner of war camp or since and if there is no widow or dependent children who survive.

Application for benefits may be made through the service officer in Pickaway Courthouse.

ment practices and failure to act fast enough when infectious diseases strike.

AS A STANDARD procedure for preventing and controlling losses, the veterinary medical organization recommends these steps:

1. Start with strong, healthy breeding stock. If pigs are born dead, weak, or defective, have boars and sows checked for possible hereditary defects or conditions that may make them unsuitable for further breeding.

2. Keep herds healthy by blocking entrances for disease germs. Travelers and trucks that go from one farm to another should be kept out of the hog lot, and newly purchased animals should be given a health examination and kept in quarantine for a minimum of one month.

3. Feed a ration that is balanced with respect to grains, mineral and vitamin supplements, and animal protein, and keep the entire herd on good pasture as much of the year as possible.

4. Put newborn pigs on clean ground well removed from the hog lot.

Haul them to their new quarters in a crate instead of walking them through the lot, to prevent exposure to germs and parasites of the older animals.

Pens should be moved to new, clean ground at regular intervals and pastures rotated for all species of stock on the farm.

5. Have pigs immunized

against cholera, and against erysipelas if conditions warrant.

6. Get an immediate diagnosis of disease outbreaks and move pigs that are still healthy to another part of the farm—far away from the sick ones.

At least a half dozen diseases that were not formerly considered important are now taking a toll in the pig crop, the AVMA says.

TRANSMISSIBLE gastroenteritis, infectious rhinitis, and a blood disease called eperythrozoonosis are listed among swine infections that have gained importance during recent years. These and others have teamed up with old-timers such as cholera, erysipelas, dysentery, influenza, brucellosis, tuberculosis, and nutritional and parasitic ailments to make swine raising a bad financial risk for farmers who neglect disease control.

Council Meets Only 2 Seconds

Circleville city council met Tuesday night for two seconds.

With only three councilmen present the meeting was adjourned immediately after President of Council Ben Gordon rapped twice with his gavel to open it. Three members does not constitute a quorum.

Present were Councilmen Joe Brink, Walden Reichelderfer and Boyd Horn.
